Celebrating Easter Traditions

by Petra Lessoing
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The meaning of Easter is universal, but it's celebrated differently throughout the world.

Even in the various German states, people observe different traditions and customs. Small backyard trees are decorated with Easter eggs. Special Easter wreaths are hung on entrance doors, and in houses, Germans put branches of forsythias, willow catkins and other trees in vases and decorate them with Easter eggs and ornaments. In some towns, Easter trees are put up, fountains are decorated with eggs, flowers and garlands, and Easter markets with selling booths and merry-go-rounds are held.

The Easter market in Kaiserslautern is set up in front of Stiftskirche and continues through Saturday. Vendors will be available to sell handcrafted decorations, candles, artificial flowers, stuffed animals and candy.

In department and grocery stores, the shelves are filled with Easter candy and Easter baskets and nets are filled with treats.

For children, the most famous symbol of Easter is the Easter bunny, who is as fascinating as Santa Claus. But while they get to see Santa Claus, the Easter bunny stays invisible. Children believe the Easter bunny and his helpers dye the eggs, bring them to their homes and hide them in the house or in the backyard for them to find. The hunt for Easter eggs is the main feature of Easter for children.

The Easter egg had its beginnings in the ancient past. Early philosophers gave special significance to the oval shape of elemental things, from the raindrop to the seed, and the oval Easter egg is an outgrowth of ancient pagan rites associated with the rebirth of nature.

For the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, the egg was a symbol of fertility and life. They put clay and marble eggs in graves to facilitate the dead passing into another world.

In China 5,000 years ago, it was tradition to give away decorated eggs for the beginning of spring. In Finland, people claim the universe derived from one giant egg. In Persia, eggs were only combined with spring festivities, because during the season of the new sun, poultry started laying eggs again.

It has not been explored why eggs play such a big role on Easter. A reason might be the strict prohibition by the church to eat eggs during Lent.

In former times, decorated eggs were given as gifts throughout the year. Later it was just done on Easter. It was not only the Easter bunny giving away eggs. But storks, foxes and donkeys were also the bearers of eggs in mythology. In 1682, the Easter bunny was mentioned for the first time. When the production of Easter chocolate and bunnies as well as the printing of Easter picture books and postcards began around 1850, the long-eared bunny became an Easter trademark.

In Germany, Easter celebrations start the Thursday before Good Friday, called "Gründonnerstag," or green Thursday. The word green is not associated with the color but rather with the old German verb "grienen," which means "to bemoan." It's a custom in German families to eat green vegetables that day, preferably spinach.

The following day, Good Friday, is an official German holiday. For Protestants it is one of the most important religious holidays, while Roman Catholics strictly observe it as a day of fasting.

Germans celebrate Easter on two days, Easter Sunday and Easter Monday. A popular meal served is roast lamb. According to Christians, the lamb is the symbol for the crucifixion and the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. The Easter lamb has its origin in a 2,000-year-old Jewish custom, and in 1265, the lamb appeared as a pastry for the first time. Today, bakeries offer Easter lamb pastries as well as Easter leavened wreaths with a hard-boiled colored egg in the middle.

Kaiserslautern hosts Easter egg hunts

Story and photos by Christine June
USAG Kaiserslautern

U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern hosts two Easter events Saturday to give KMC children a chance to hunt for eggs that the Easter bunny has hidden for them.

First up is the garrison's Eggstravaganza, which starts at 11 a.m. at Pulaski Park on Pulaski Barracks. Next is the Landstuhl Community Chapel's Easter Egg Hunt from 2 to 4 p.m. at the chapel grounds on Landstuhl Regional Medical Center.

Both are free events for Department of Defense ID cardholders and their families.

"Hosting the Eggstravaganza is one small way for the garrison to bring a slice of the states to our children overseas," said Steve Selvey, the garrison Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation's Kaiserslautern Outdoor Recreation manager, who is in charge of this year's event.

Eggstravaganza has been hosted by the garrison for several years as an event for the Month of the Military Child, which is in April, and this is the third year that it is tied into the Army Family Covenant – a commitment by Army leadership to improve the quality of life for families.

A record number of about 1,000 people, including more than 500 children, attended last year's Eggstravaganza, Mr. Selvey said.

The Eggstravaganza will again host the Easter bunny, who will be available to pose for pictures with families. Mr. Selvey added that the Easter bunny will have a basket full of decorated eggs for late arrivals and children who missed getting some eggs during the hunt.

Decorated eggs of various sizes and filled with candies will be hidden in four areas, blocked off into four age groups, for the Eggstravaganza hunts.

The park's playground will be divided into two areas: one for children younger than 3 years old and the other for children 3 to 4 years old.

The flat grassy upper area next to the woods is for children 5 to 7 years old, and the wooded area above the playground is for children 8 to 12 years old.

Egg collection bags will be available for the children, Mr. Selvey said. He added that there will even be a table set aside so children can decorate their bags. A bouncy castle will also be available for the children.

Families will be allowed to enter the area at 10:35 a.m.

Landstuhl Community Chapel has hosted this event for three years.

"We host this event to give the community a chance to get to know us, and we get to know them," said Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas Collier, the garrison's Kaiserslautern community chaplain, who is the officer in charge of this event. "It's a time to fellowship and have fun."

The chapel's hunts will be broken down into different time slots for three age groups: ages 1 to 4 will start hunting eggs at 2:30 p.m., 5 to 8 at 3 p.m., and 9 to 12 at 3:30 p.m.

"Each year we have added more to our event," Chaplain Collier said.

This year's event will have a bouncy castle, games and crafts. Music will be provided by the Worship Band and food will be served.

In case of inclement weather, the event will be held in LRMC's Heaton Auditorium.

This year's Eggstravaganza starts at 11 a.m. Saturday at Pulaski Park. The Landstuhl Community Chapel will also host an Easter egg hunt from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the chapel grounds on Landstuhl Regional Medical Center. Both are free events for Department of Defense ID cardholders and their families.

Easter Chick Hunt Contest!

As a treat for our readers, the Kaiserslautern American is holding an Easter Chick Hunt Contest.

For this Special Spring Edition, local businesses and organizations have donated various prizes.

To enter the contest, flip through this edition and count the number of Easter chicks that can be seen throughout the paper. You can find the chicks in the stories, pictures or even in the ads. See below for an example of what the Easter chick looks like. Only count the chicks; do not count the eggs! Hint: The chick on this page doesn't count, but the one on Page 2 does.

When you think you've got the correct number of Easter chicks, send that number in an e-mail to editor@kaiserslauternamerican.com with "Easter Contest" written in the subject line. Make sure to include your first and last name and a phone number where you can be reached.

E-mails will be accepted until 5 p.m. April 12. Those contestants with the correct number of Easter chicks will have a chance at winning one of several great prizes!

The winners will be notified by April 13 and will also have their names printed in the April 15 edition of the paper.

Here's your chance to win one of these great prizes!

Pulaski Park ready for outdoor fun

Srory and photos by Christine June
USAG Kaiserslautern

April is here and with it the sounds of children playing outside and the smells of barbecue in the air.

All of this and more can be found at U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern's Pulaski Park located on Pulaski Barracks.

Renovated in 2003, Pulaski Park offers KMC members a chance to enjoy outdoor activities from playing basketball to cooking on a grill in a secluded area on base, said Steve Selvey, the garrison Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation's Kaiserslautern Outdoor Recreation manager.

It was one of the many services and projects that helped the garrison be selected as a semi-finalist for the 2004 Army Communities of Excellence for the Installation Management Command-Europe award competition.

Now, the park is tied into the Army Family Covenant – a commitment by Army leadership to improve the quality of life for families.

Centrally located, the park is nestled between Pulaski Barracks and Vogelweh.

"Pulaski Park is very convenient because it's ideally located in the KMC and has a storage area which holds tables and chairs," Mr. Selvey said.

Melissa Hastings, U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern's safety officer, plays basketball with her children at the garrison's organizational day at the basketball court, located on the upper half of Pulaski Park on Pulaski Barracks.

"It's also a good location because the Super Grills from Outdoor Recreation and food supplies from the (Vogelweh) commissary are nearby."

For reservation purposes, the park is cut in half by the road leading from Pulaski Gate 11 to the Vogelweh circle, passing the Pulaski Auto Skills. Renters can reserve the whole or just one side of the park, said Kerri Schmitt, a recreation assistant at the garrison Kaiserslautern Outdoor Recreation.

The upper half of the park is about 7.86 acres, or 31,970 square meters, and has a basketball court, volleyball pit, playground, a stage and pavilion with a built-in grill and picnic area. Bathroom facilities are also located in the upper half and are for all those who use the park.

A new boundless playground is being added to the park next to the basketball court area.

"The new playground will enhance the accessibility for all children with physical limitations," said Mr. Selvey.

He also added that completion of the park is scheduled to be completed by the end of this month.

The lower half of the park is about 8.3 acres, or 33,590 square meters, and offers a track, baseball field and pavilion with a built-in grill.

"When the park is reserved, individuals and families can still go in and use the park's facilities as long as they are not using the grill," Ms. Schmitt said.

All U.S. ID cardholders are eligible to reserve the park for group or individual activities, such as unit functions and family barbecues or even birthday parties. Reservations are for a day, not for specific time periods, and can be reserved throughout the year, said Ms. Schmitt, who added that the park is open from dawn to dusk.

"It's the responsibility of everybody who uses the park (whether renting or not) to pick up after themselves and to take their trash with them at the end of the event," Ms. Schmitt said. "And, when someone reserves the park, they are required to fill out a contract that includes a credit card number; they will be charged if they leave the park messy."

Pets are not allowed in the park.

The cost to rent the entire park for a day is $75. To rent just one side of the part is $50 a day. To reserve Pulaski Park, visit the Kaiserslautern Outdoor Recreation in Bldg. 2905 on Pulaski Barracks or call at 493-4117 or 0631-3406-4117.

Spring's best recipes

Recipes courtesy of Stephani Hinderliter
AdvantiPro Staff Writer

After eating heavy comfort foods all winter in an effort to stay warm and forget the cold, you may be craving something a little lighter and fresher. Take advantage of the warm, sunny weather and incorporate it into your cooking this spring with these fresh and healthy recipes.

Shrimp Dip

Courtesy photo

This appetizer with shrimp, cocktail sauce and cream cheese has never received anything but compliments and praise from everyone I have served it to. Serves 16.

1 8-ounce package of light cream cheese, at room temperature
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoons freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 tablespoons light mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoons onion powder
3/4 lb. cooked cocktail shrimp, tails removed
3/4 cups cocktail sauce
1 bag Fritos Scoops corn chips

1. Mix cream cheese, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, mayonnaise and onion powder until well-incorporated. Spread mixture into the bottom of an 8x8-inch baking dish or similar size serving platter. Spread cocktail sauce evenly over the top of the cream cheese mixture.

2. Rough-chop shrimp and arrange evenly over the top of the cocktail sauce.

3. Serve with corn chips for dipping.

Quiche Lorraine a la Steph

My version of Quiche Lorraine is not only healthier than the traditional recipe, but it's also a time saver because it saves you from having to break and beat half a dozen eggs. Serves six.

1 frozen 9-inch pie crust, thawed
1 1/2 cups liquid egg substitute
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
6 ounces canadian bacon, diced
1 cup shredded reduced-fat swiss cheese
1/3 cup diced leek

1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees F (210 degrees C).

2. Spray pie crust with nonstick cooking spray. Cover it loosely with foil and bake for 10 minutes; remove foil and bake four more minutes.

3. Reduce oven to 325 degrees F (160 degrees C). Whisk together egg substitute, salt, pepper and cayenne. Layer meat, cheese and leeks in crust and pour egg mixture over the top. Use a pastry brush to brush egg mixture onto the edges of the pie crust to seal it and prevent it from burning. Bake 40-45 minutes or until set in the middle. Let sit 10 minutes before serving.

Triple Berry Banana Yogurt Smoothie

Courtesy photo

Served with breakfast, for a snack or as a healthy dessert, this smoothie is sure to please both kids and adults alike with its bright flavors and creamy texture. Serves two.

8 ounces frozen mixed berries (raspberries, blueberries, blackberries, strawberries, etc.)
2 small ripe bananas, peeled and sliced
1 cup low-fat or fat free vanilla yogurt
2 tablespoons honey

1. Put all ingredients in a blender and blend until smooth.

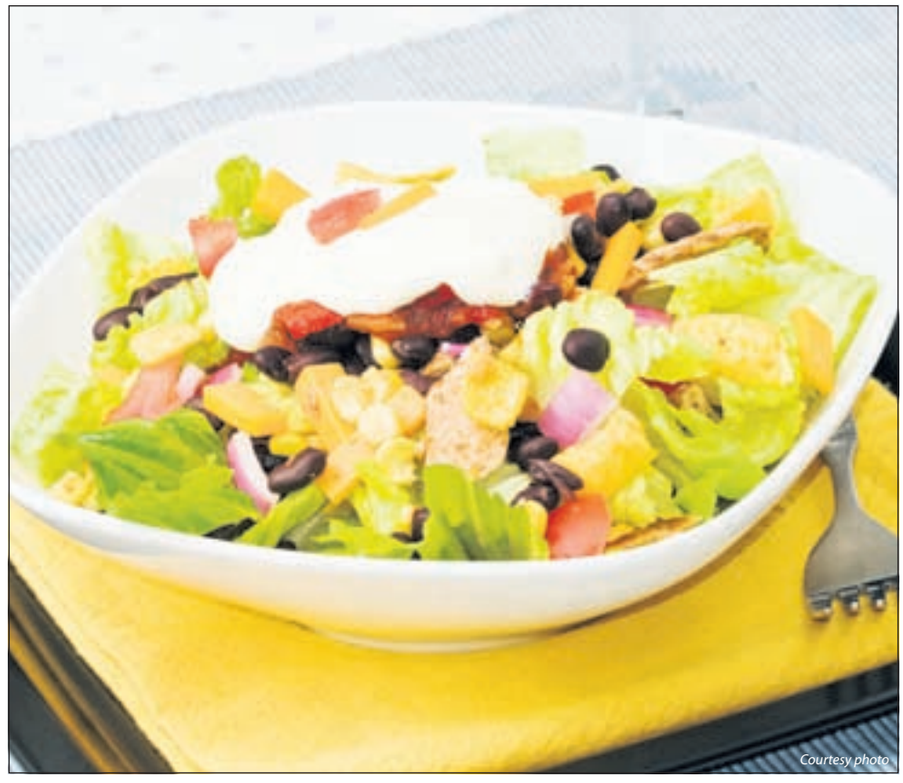
Upside-down Taco Salad



Courtesy photo

This Mexican-style dinner salad is packed with flavor and is sure to fill you up, and it's healthy to boot. Serves four.

1/2 cup taco sauce or salsa
1/2 cup light sour cream
1 package taco seasoning
1 pound skinless boneless chicken strips
1 bag romaine lettuce or baby spinach
1 small can Mexicorn, drained
1 small can sliced black olives, drained
1 small can black beans, drained and rinsed
1 package cherry or grape tomatoes, halved
1 cup shredded Mexican cheese
1/2 cup coarsely crushed Harvest Cheddar Sun chips

1. Mix taco sauce or salsa, sour cream and 1 tablespoon taco seasoning in a small bowl. Set aside.

2. Mix remaining taco seasoning with 1/2 cup water. Marinate chicken strips in the mixture in a plastic zip-top bag, pressing as much of the air out as possible, for at least an hour, turning once. Cook chicken and marinade on medium heat in a nonstick skillet with the lid on, turning once, until cooked through. Let chicken rest 10 minutes after cooking.

3. Arrange lettuce/spinach on four plates. Slice chicken into strips and place on top of spinach. Top chicken with corn, olives, black beans and tomatoes. Spoon dressing over the salad, then top with cheese and crushed chips.

HOMECOMING FOR A SWEET DISH!

With the emigration wave in the 18th century, the Palatine specialty "Strauben," or funnel cake, first set foot in Pennsylvania and quickly found widespread popularity throughout North America.

At first, the Palatine immigrants baked their special sweet dish only on holidays and for weddings because Strauben was meant to bring luck to anyone who enjoyed it.

People would pull them apart with their fingers and share the dish with each other, which makes Strauben most likely the first known finger food in the states.

Today, funnel cake, which in German literally translates to Trichterkuchen, is very popular in the U.S. and Canada. The dish is mostly served at county fairs and farmers markets.

Since 1992, Robert and Verena Konietzko have brought the forgotten specialty back to the Palatinate and are now selling the funnel cakes under the name "Kringelfritz."

The couple said they are determined to introduce Strauben to every visitor who comes to their markets, bazaars and county fairs in the area.

As the Konietzko family cannot be present at every wine fest and Christmas market at the same time, they brought in other business partners to help distribute the product.

Today, a few Palatine restaurants are baking the newly discovered sweet specialty, and more caterers, franchise partners and local stores will hopefully join soon.

After many years of developing the recipe, today's generation of Strauben is being produced by a very easy to make baking mix.

It is always a success and they are simply delicious! Welcome home to the Strauben and to all of us.

Guten Appetit!

You can purchase the baking mix online at www.kringelfritz.de or at the restaurants that bake them.

'Climb on' with Outdoor Recreation

by Stephani Hinderliter
AdvantiPro Staff Writer

Have you ever spent a Saturday afternoon hanging in a harness from the ceiling, your faith completely in someone else to not let you fall?

If not, then chances are you've never been indoor rock climbing.

Indoor climbing is a sport that has gained immense popularity over the years, and now the KMC is fortunate to have its very own climbing wall at Ramstein Outdoor Recreation, located in the Kaiserslautern Military Community Center The climbing wall opened up along with the new KMCC last fall, and the staff have been busy teaching people how to boulder, belay and "climb on" ever since.

Don't worry if you've never been climbing before and have no equipment. ODR has all the necessities, including a helpful staff who will teach you everything you need to know from start to finish and even help you out on your first few ventures up the wall to make sure you're safe.

Climbing 101 beginner's classes are offered at 2 p.m Sundays, 1 and 6 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, and 1 and 4 p.m. Saturdays. The cost for the class is $20, which includes climbing shoes and harness rental for the day. In the class, you will learn how to fasten your harness and attach the ropes used for climbing, the proper way to knot the ropes, climbing vernacular, and how to belay someone, which means to support them from the ground while they are on the wall.

Before heading to the climbing wall, prepare by eating a healthy, well-balanced meal and hydrating. Climbing is hard work and you will burn a lot of calories, so fueling up beforehand is a must.

Wear comfortable workout clothes that are not baggy or bulky to climb. Wear shorts at your own risk – remember, people will be standing underneath you looking directly up at you. Capri pants work better than full-length pants, but fitted full-length pants shouldn't pose a problem.

Plan on arriving for Climbing 101 20 to 30 minutes early. You must fill out paperwork and then be entered into the system before you can begin. Minors need a parent to sign a liability waiver to be able to participate the class.

The class is on a first come, first served basis and ODR does not take reservations. Once you complete the class, you will receive an ODR Climbing 101 card certifying you have completed the class and have the knowledge and skills to safely climb and belay another climber.

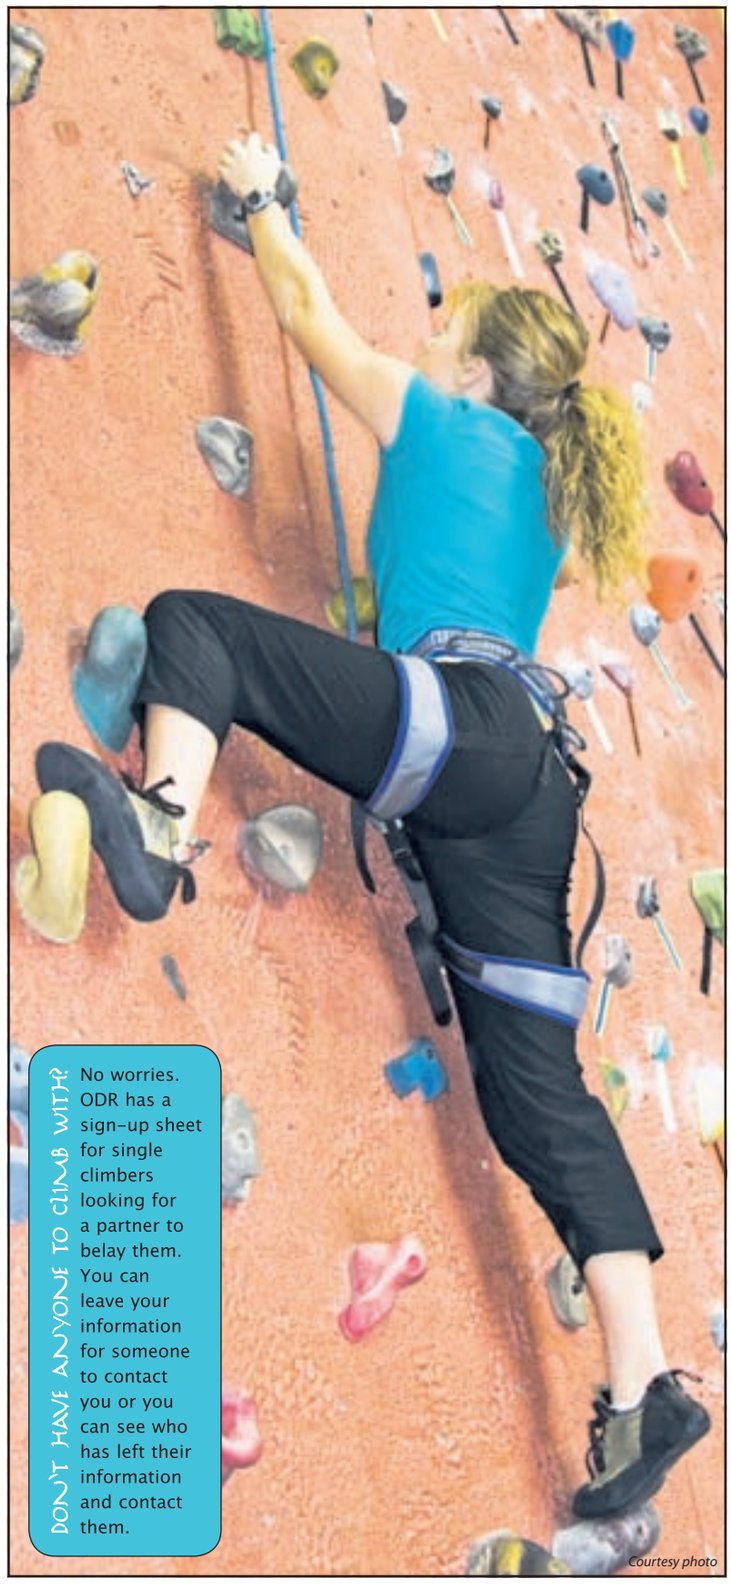
From there, you are free to climb as often as you like. ODR will always have shoes and harnesses for rent, but if you find yourself becoming an avid climber, purchasing your own equipment will allow you to find what you feel most comfortable in and take it with you wherever you go.

An all-day climbing pass for certified climbers with shoe and harness rental is $12. ODR has recently begun offering passes for $35 that are good for 30 days from the date of purchase for unlimited climbing and gear rental. A six-month pass is also available for $90. The passes are good for climbing only and cannot be used for classes or special events.

Youths 14 and older can climb unattended as long as they are certified in Climbing 101 and a signed liability waiver is on file. Any children 14 and under must be supervised at all times.

ODR also offers other classes several times a week. Bend and Boulder is at noon Tuesdays and 11 a.m. Fridays. The class is 45 minutes of yoga, followed by 45 minutes of bouldering, which is climbing without a harness on short walls with mats underneath to catch you if you fall. No precertification is required for this class and the cost is $4.

Rock Girls is a girls only group rock climbing class offered at 10:30 Thursdays. Participants must be certified to climb beforehand and the cost is also $4. Several other classes will be starting this month and ODR will also begin to offer outdoor climbing trips as the weather gets nicer. For more information, stop by, go to www.86thservices.com/OutdoorRec.html or call 480-5705.



Don't have anyone to climb with? No worries. ODR has a sign-up sheet for single climbers looking for a partner to belay them. You can leave your information for someone to contact you or you can see who has left their information and contact them.

Germany is for happy campers

by Stephani Hinderliter
AdvantiPro Staff Writer

The smell of roasted marshmallows, stars dotting the clear night sky and the sound of a campfire crackling in the background are all things that conjure up fond memories of family camping trips for many people. Camping is a popular tradition for families in the states – approximately one-third of American households with children camp each year.

Not only is camping an inexpensive way to go on a "mini vacation" to get away from the daily grind, but it's also a great way to get out of the house after being huddled around the wall radiator trying to stay warm for the past several months. With an abundance of gorgeous scenery right here in our own backyards and the weather getting warmer by the day, why not dust off the tent and sleeping bags and head out into the great outdoors for some American-style fun?

Surprisingly, there are many campgrounds near the KMC. Prices are reasonable, and many have Web sites (in English) that tell you everything you need to know before you arrive. Several of the campgrounds also feature modern amenities such as heated pools, laundromats, restaurants and sundries stores in case you forget something.

Prümtal campground is located near Bitburg in the German-Luxembourg National Park. About an hour and a half drive from Kaiserslautern on the banks of the Prüm River, Prümtal features a restaurant, a heated outdoor pool, several sports fields, a kids playground, and options for fishing, hiking and biking. Three horseback riding ranches are conveniently located nearby for equine enthusiasts. Pricing is based on the size of the tent pitch you choose, starting at €3.40 per night, as well as how many children and adults you have in your party, ranging from €3.70 to €6.30 per person per night, respectively. A discount is offered for multiple-night stays. Go to www.pruemtal.de/ and click on the British flag for the English version of the site to find more information.

Ferienpark Prümtal is a little farther from Kaiserslautern – about an hour and 45 minutes – and has bungalows holding four to eight people available for rent in addition to standard campsites. Nearby family-friendly activities include the Eifelpark Gondorf (www.eifelpark.de) and the Eifel Zoo (www.eifel-zoo.de, German only). A kids playground, tennis courts, miniature golf and volleyball courts are located on-site. Guests can rent bikes during the summer months. Bunglows start at €53 per night for four people, €64 per night for six people and €84 per night for eight people. The all-inclusive price for a tent pitch for two people is €19.50 per night, and each additional person 5 and older is €3.50. Go to www.ferienpark-waxweiler.de/ and click on the British flag for the English version of the site to find more information.

Neudahner Weiher campground, located about an hour south of Kaiserslautern on Lake Neudahn, is another local campground. Two castles, the Neudahn Castle and the Altdahn Castle, are located nearby, with the Neudahn Castle being a 15-minute hike from the campground. A unique rock formation called The Devil's Table is also located a short drive from Neudahner Weiher on the B-10. The table-shaped formation was formed by erosion wearing away at soft layers of rock underneath a hard layer of sandstone on top. A tent pitch for up to six people is €7 for the pitch. For guests, the cost is €5 per day for children up to 14 and €7 per day for adults, and includes use of the shower facilities. Go to www.neudahner-weiher.de/ and click on the British flag for the English version of the site to find more information.

These are just a few of the many campgrounds in the area. The German Web site Camping in Deutschland (www.camping-in-deutschland.de/) lists several campgrounds throughout Germany. Click "Bundesland" and choose a state to see a list of links to campgrounds in that area. Not all of the linked sites will have an English version available though.

Happy camping!

LEPPER GRANDFATHER CLOCKS

When you hear the brand name "Lepper," think about fine solid wood, high-quality workmanship, best quality overall and experienced employees.

Starting in 1925, a professional carpenter and carver, Friedrich Lepper, founded the company in Ladbergen, which is located between Munster and Osnabruck. Since the beginning, the company manufactured grandfather clocks made with high-quality solid wood and crafted stylish pieces of furniture.

In 1978, Friedrich Lepper Jr. took over the management and extended the company even further. The generation went on with Manuel Lepper, Friedrich's son who took control of the family business. This generation continued and the Lepper brand remained relevant and known. The company has a commanding philosophy that says: "We do not mass produce."

Lepper takes a different approach to this by focusing on producing the best grandfather clocks and furniture made of the highest standard materials and craftsmanship. Some of the high standard materials chosen by Lepper include quality woods such as oak, cherry, walnut, maple, beech, mahogany or wenge (a tropical timber). Each clock itself is a unique piece of art that meets the highest standards, making them true masterpieces.

The clocks are not just made from precious materials, but also with creativity, passion, craftsmanship and skill. These superior features can easily be noticed in these radiant clocks.

Of course, customers are always taken into consideration when it comes to the planning and construction. The clocks never fail to impress in both style and elegance. Whether they are recognized by their modern carvings or with marquetry, the "made by Lepper" seal truly defines the top of the line brand that produces excellent valued clocks. These ticking masterpieces are powered by precision clocks from the Black Forest, made by Kieninger, which are installed at Lepper. Once again, only the best is good enough.

The company sells its clocks worldwide via the Internet. The fact is, Germany isn't the only country where customers use Lepper furniture and clocks for home decorating. The only places to buy these products are directly through Lepper or on the Internet.

This is advantageous, as products bought directly from the manufacturer are more affordable than buying them at a retail store. Lepper stands for tradition, creativity, exclusivity and high quality.

The Stuttgarter Hofbrau tent is the largest of the seven tents permanently housed at the Canstatter Wasen and seats 5,200 people. The Frühlingsfest in Stuttgart takes place April 17 to May 9.

Oktoberfest in ... April?

by Stephani Hinderliter
AdvantiPro Staff Writer

Everyone knows Oktoberfest by the millions of people who travel to Munich from literally the world over to sample German beer, don their dirndls and lederhosen, dance on tables, and ride carnival rides. Oktoberfest receives more than 6 million visitors each year, while the lesser-known Canstatter Volksfest, held in Stuttgart during the same time as Oktoberfest, gets a mere 4 million-plus visitors, making it the second-largest beer festival in the world.

But if you missed out on Oktoberfest last fall or are just looking for a replay of it to usher in warm weather, search no farther than the "Frühlingsfest," or Spring Festival, in nearby Stuttgart. This is the spring version of the Canstatter Volksfest or Oktoberfest and will take place this year starting April 17 and go through May 9. Opening times are noon Monday to Friday and 11 a.m. Saturdays, Sundays and German holidays. The festival closes at 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight Fridays, Saturdays and the day before a German holiday, with the tent bands finishing 30 minutes before closing time.

Frühlingsfest is held every year at the Canstatter Wasen, a fairground located in the Bad Canstatt district of Stuttgart. A variety of fairground attractions are featured there, including a 60-meter-tall ferris wheel, the largest mobile Ferris wheel in the world. Other carnival rides include roller coasters, rotating swings, carousels and a 66-meter-tall "Power Tower" free-fall tower, as well as many other traditional carnival rides. There are also many booths featuring games where participants can win prizes.

No one will go hungry or thirsty with nearly 100 food and drink vendors serving everything from crepes to flammkuchen to coffee. Additionally, vendors sell clothing, kitchenwares, leather goods and just about anything else you could imagine. Dirndls, lederhosen and all the accoutrements are available in the Alpine Village, an area separate from the main festival. Several additional food stands and vendors and another, smaller tent can also be found there.

One thing you can't miss when heading into the Canstatter Wasen is the iconic fruit column, a symbol of the fairgrounds. The fruit column is a 26-meter high, 3.5 ton wooden pillar that is decorated with fruit and is a visible landmark from anywhere in the fairgrounds. The tip is dismantled after the festivals, but the base is left up year-round. The base of the column houses information stands and souvenir shops.

If you don't plan on going just to eat carnival food and ride rides, you can make your way into a tent. There are seven permanently housed tents to choose from and each one holds from 1,800 to 5,200 people. You may be able to get into a tent without a reservation, depending on how full the tent is that day. Some tents may still have reservations available, which guarantees you a spot. The price of the reservation gets you two liters of beer and a half-chicken dinner.

To search for available reservations for tents, go to www.cannstatter-volksfest.de/, click the British flag on the left side of the page to switch to English, and click "Festival Tents" to see links to each individual tent's Web site

(Note: not all the individual tent Web sites have an English version.)

A toast, a toast, to you

The toasting song "Ein Prosit," or "A Toast To You," is a traditional song that is heard over and over again at festivals throughout Germany. It is meant to be a salute to your health or well-being.

After singing the song, you say "Prost!" and cheers with those around you, then take a hearty drink. Make sure to make eye contact when cheersing with someone — the Germans have a superstition that if you don't, you will have seven years of bad luck.

"Gemütlichkeit" means a warm, happy feeling.

The song can be hard to sing along with if you don't know the words. Here are the words with pronunciation:

Ein Prosit, ein Prosit, der Gemütlichkeit,
(Ine Pro-zit, Ine Pro-zit, dur Gay-mewt-lish-kite)

Ein Prosit, ein Prosit, der Gemütlichkeit,
(Ine Pro-zit, Ine Pro-zit, dur Gay-mewt-lish-kite)

Eins, zwei, drei, g'suffa!
(Ines, tzvye, dry, soo-fa!)

Zicke, zacke, zicke, zacke, hoi, hoi, hoi!
(Tzickee, tzahckee, tzickee, tzahckee, oy, oy, oy)

Zicke, zacke, zicke, zacke, hoi, hoi, hoi!
(Tzickee, tzahckee, tzickee, tzahckee, oy, oy, oy)

Prost!

LEGOLAND

Just an hour from Munich and Stuttgart is one of the four most visited leisure parks in Germany. And this fantasy land was created using more than 50 million Lego bricks. The park, which is located in Günzburg, Bavaria, is a family and leisure park with more than 50 attractions, including rides, live shows and workshops.

This year, visitors can look forward to many spectacular events. For example, in August, the tallest Lego tower will be built with the help of park visitors.

Also, until April 13, Legoland will be attempting to set a Guinness World Record.

For 14 days, Australian marine biologist and adventurer Lloyd Godson will live in a house measuring 4 square meters in the underwater world of Legoland Atlantis without surfacing once.

Mr. Godson will attempt to generate the largest amount of electricity that has ever been generated by pedaling under water.

To see these attractions and others, such as Lego City, where Lego bricks are made in front of the visitor's eyes, Miniland, where internationally known buildings have been rebuilt in miniature, and Adventure Land, a part of the park hidden in wild jungle, plan your family vacation to Legoland today.

OPENING HOURS

Open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. March to November. Longer opening hours apply on weekends, during vacation time and on public holidays. For park closing days and to view an opening calendar, visit the park's Web site at www.legoland.de.

ONLINE PRICES

A one-day ticket costs €32.40 for adults, €28.80 for children 3 to 11 years old and seniors 60 and over, and €99 for a family ticket (only available for purchase online). For more admission prices, information on annual passes and for discounts, visit www.legoland.de.

A taste of Rome

Touring the ancient Roman city of Trier

by Michael J. Meese
Contributing writer

In the beginning of the last millennium, the ancient empire of Rome made itself at home in the German countryside, its powerful legions effectively holding the barbarous Germanic tribes at bay. Roman cities, towns, forts and supply roads sprang up all through Germany's mid to lower regions, far from the empire's seat of authority in Rome. Settlers joined the soldiers as they made their mark along such famous waterways as the Rhein and Mosel rivers, populating these major water arteries' valleys. One of these settlements, seated on the banks of the Mosel River, is still thriving today as a major tourist destination. It is Trier.

Romans planted Trier's roots in 15 B.C., making it the oldest metropolis in Germany. A testament to the historical fact that Trier predates any other of Germany's cities is the many Roman edifices and ruins occupying Trier, such as the "Porta Nigra," or Black Gate. It was built in the second century, and served as the city's northern entrance. One of four gates into the city, this massive blackened building has become as much a dominant landmark of Trier as the Eiffel Tower is of Paris. It is also the largest Roman city gate north of the Alpine mountains.

The Porta Nigra now welcomes visitors into Trier's pedestrian zone and "Fussgänger Zone, " or shopping district, which is lined with a variety of stores, bakeries, cafes and restaurants.

"The shopping area is pretty and clean. (It's) lined with nice stores, and there's a lot of history to be seen from ancient Roman to medieval times," said Sabine Daberko, a resident of Landstuhl who visited Trier. "Also, there are all different kinds of restaurants, like Italian (and) German, and many pleasant cafes and bars to relax in."

The Porta Nigra is just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to uncovering Roman sites within Trier. The Basilica of Constantine, from the fourth century, is the largest surviving single-room structure from the Roman era, with a remarkable length of 221 feet long and a ceiling that soars into the sky at 100 feet. The Roman emperor used this vast hall as his throne room and as a means to impress his visitors with its lavishly painted walls and sheer size.

Today, the basilica serves not as an emperor's chamber, but as a place of worship, as it has been transformed into a Protestant church. Located at the basilica are the large remains of the Roman bath, where visitors can still see how such technology functioned to provide Romans with a means to relax and socialize.

Trier's oldest bridge is also a product of the Romans, dating back to the second century. It holds the esteemed claim to be the oldest bridge north of the Alps that is still being crossed by traffic.

The well-preserved amphitheater still inspires awe in visitors, who can easily imagine the gladiator battles that took place in its arena.

If the actual sites where Romans walked aren't enough to impress, the "Rheinisches Landesmuseum," or Rheinland land museum, displays all things Roman. Aside from ancient Roman relics on view, the museum's prized piece is a sandstone sculpture of a Roman boat loaded with wine casks. This ancient piece of art is said to have marked the tomb of a Roman wine dealer from around A.D. 220.

Trier is a time portal back into the Roman Empire. It's also a city with a modern face, featuring fine dining and excellent shopping opportunities. Trier's tourist office is near the Porta Nigra and features valuable information about the city's history, museums, cultural attractions and the various tours that are offered.

The 2010 IIHF World Championship

GERMANY ON ICE

The 2010 International Ice Hockey Federation World Championship is this year's most important international sporting event in Germany.

The championship will take place from May 7 to 23 in the Mannheim SAP ARENA, the Cologne LANXESS Arena and the Gelsenkirchen Veltins Arena.

The organization committee is expecting 500,000 spectators at 56 world championship games from 16 of the world's best nations. Around 650 million people are expected to follow the world championship on television. More than 330,000 tickets are already sold.

Single game ticket prices start at €9 for a game in the relegation round, €19 for a game in the preliminary round and between €84 and €164 for a game in the gold final range.

The SAP ARENA in Mannheim, about a 20 minute drive from Ramstein and Kaiserslautern, will host 26 exciting games from May 8 to 20.

The arena has a capacity of 14,000 and belongs to the world's most modern ice hockey facilities. It is also home to the Mannheim Eagles, who have the record for the German league championships.

Thanks to state-of-the-art technology, the change from an ice stadium to a concert hall or theater stage is easy and fast. Famous celebrities like Sir Elton John and David Copperfield have already performed there, and many stars like Whitney Houston and Simply Red will perform a concert there this year.

One of the simplest ways to help yourself, your family and the environment is to stop pouring expensive chemical cleaners all over the things you own and down the drain.

It's easy being green

by Stephani Hinderliter
AdvantiPro Staff Writer

"Going green" is a phrase that is on the tip of everyone's tongue these days, but being green can be overwhelming when there are so many options and opinions and information pulling you in different directions.

How can you be more "green" without having to overhaul every aspect of your life? By taking small steps to lessen your impact on the environment.

One of the simplest ways to help yourself, your family and the environment is to stop pouring expensive chemical cleaners all over the things you own and down the drain.

When you clean your bathroom with bleach cleaner, your floors with pine cleaner or your carpets with chemical-laden foam cleaners, those chemicals all get rinsed down the drain and into the water supply at one point or another.

Making your own household cleaners not only helps the environment, but it saves you cash and rids your house of items that can be potentially toxic to pets and children. Your toilets, floors and carpets all come in contact with your pets and family, and residue left behind from those harsh cleaners can be dangerous to one or both of them.

Items you already have in your pantry can clean your house just as well as or better than expensive chemical cleaners, and for a fraction of the cost and little effort. Check out these common household items that pull double or triple duty as cleaning products.

WHITE VINEGAR

Easily the most versatile natural cleaning product, white vinegar can be used to clean surfaces in your kitchen and bathroom, at full strength for tough jobs or diluted half and half with water for lighter cleaning, and can be used in a carpet shampooer instead of chemical shampoo, or for mopping tile or wood floors. It can also be used to dissolve hard water stains and soap scum in the bathroom. It cuts laundry detergent residue and softens clothes, so use one cup in place of fabric softener or dryer sheets, which can contain formaldehyde, in the rinse cycle. For a glass and surface cleaner, mix one-fourth cup white vinegar and 1 tablespoon cornstarch with one quart of water and put in a spray bottle. Use newspaper to wipe it off windows and glass surfaces — paper towels leave lint. White vinegar is a natural deodorizer — it absorbs odors, rather than covering them up, and the strong smell disappears as soon as it dries.

BAKING SODA

Baking soda is mildly abrasive, so it can be used in place of scouring powders. Sprinkle it onto a damp sponge and clean the stove and counter tops in your kitchen or your bathroom surfaces. Mix it into a paste with water and let sit on heavily soiled surfaces, such as tile and grout, for 10 to 15 minutes to loosen up grime before scrubbing. It is also a natural deodorizer, so it will absorb odors anywhere in your house you place a box. Sprinkling baking soda on your carpet before vacuuming will absorb odors. To clean out slow drains, dump one cup of baking soda on the drain, then pour one cup of hot vinegar on top. Let sit for five minutes, then flush with hot water. Repeat if necessary. Use baking soda that has already served its purpose of absorbing odors in the fridge for clearing gunky drains to get more bang for your buck.

LEMONS

Lemons are naturally antibacterial and they are also deodorizers. Rub a lemon on the surface of a wooden cutting board to disinfect it before washing or toss a few cut up lemons in the garbage disposal to neutralize odors and disinfect. If you accidentally leave your coffee maker on and the coffee burns to the bottom of the decanter, squeeze some fresh lemon juice in, add a little salt and some crushed ice and swish it around. The burnt on coffee residue will dissolve. You can also mix 1 cup of lemon juice with 1 tablespoon olive oil and 1 tablespoon water (mix the water and lemon juice together first, then mix in the oil) as a wood furniture polish. Let it sit for a few minutes and then buff with a soft cloth.

BORAX

Borax has many household uses. Adding it to the washing machine boosts the cleaning power of your detergent and lets you use less of it, which saves you money and decreases the amount of chemicals going down the drain. It also acts as a water softener. Make a paste of Borax and warm water and apply to carpet or mattress stains and let sit until dry, then vacuum. Clean soiled garbage cans with Borax and water, then sprinkle Borax in the bottom of the clean, dry trash can to absorb odors. Mix equal parts of Borax and baking soda for a natural, inexpensive dishwasher powder — use between 1 1/2 and two tablespoons of the mix per load. Make sure to add white vinegar to the rinse aid dispenser to avoid a white cloudy residue. You can also add two drops (no more or you will end up with a foam party in your kitchen) of regular dish soap to boost the sudsing power of the detergent.

You can buy a gallon of white vinegar, a box of baking soda, a few lemons and a box of Borax for about the same price as one bottle of chemical household cleaner, and you can get many more uses out of those items too, both in terms of versatility and quantity.

As you can see, doing something to further the green initiative doesn't have to be time consuming, overwhelming or expensive. It can actually save you money in the long run and, more importantly, keep harsh, dangerous chemicals away from your family. Hopefully, adopting this one small aspect of being green will inspire you to make changes in other areas of your life at a pace that is comfortable for you.

The Island Of MILOS

A Greek Orthodox Church high in the hills overlooks Milos' placid bay.

Story and photos by Michael J. Meese
Contributing writer

Through the cool night enveloping the Aegean Sea, a full moon cast a silver hue across calm seas through which our ferry's bow cut. The first glimpse of the Greek, Cycladic islands was their silhouette spread against the star-studded horizon.

I was en route from Athens to the horseshoe shaped island of Milos where we docked late at night. I poured out of the ferry's yawning hold with a motley crew of whining mo-peds and sputtering compacts and followed them onto the main street of Adamas, the port city of Milos.

My first impressions of the island would have to wait until night melted away under the hot summer sun.

Stepping onto my balcony the next morning I was mesmerized by the stunning panorama before me: Under a cloudless sky, a maze of white washed square houses with deep blue painted shutters and doors stretched before me, their property shaded by the broad branches of knotted olive trees. Adamas' amiable inhabitants strolled down the city's steep inclination disappearing beneath the cerulean dome of a Greek orthodox church. Many of them were heading to the city's center for the morning market.

Milos' port city of Adamas welcomes ferries and private yachts from all over the Mediterranean.

From a distance, I could hear the shrill sales pitches of the market's vendors reverberating within the hills surrounding Adamas' sapphire bay. Upon the bay's placid surface floated a fleet of colorful fishing vessels.

To soak up the natural beauty of Milos, I spent several days cruising the countryside by mo-ped.

I drove by dry earth supporting a patchwork of vegetation. From the Northern flatlands where Adamas is located, I wound my way through valleys squeezed between immense mountains coated in black rock forged from fiery lava that flowed millions of years ago.

The valleys succumbed to cliffs circling most of the Southern coast of Milos. The hues of these cliffs were awe striking: brick red splashed with sulfur yellow that ran into a thick streak of white.

I skirted Milos' coastline that is made up of varied types of beaches; some were of white sand, others of minute pebbles blanketing serene grottoes. The sea even differed by each shore. Although crystal clear at every beach, the water was either a light blue or green tint. Below, a flourishing marine life could be observed.

To see the sparkling depths of the Milos coast for myself, I took a snorkeling trip through pillars of stone rooted into the white, sandy bottom. A diverse array of coral grew from the pallid sands. From the corals' crevices lurked squid and octopus flailing their arms in the gentle current. Fish wearing almost every color of the spectrum, and fat-shelled turtles gracefully swam around the stones.

In the evening, I took a trip to the small city of Plaka, which crowns one of the highest mountains on the island.

As my mo-ped sped through the countryside, I passed the ruins of a 5,000-year-old city, an amphitheater built in Roman times, and the spot where the famed Venus de Milo was found.

In Plaka, the alluring scent of roasting lamb and goat cheese forced me to stop in a rustic restaurant along a meandering cobblestone alley.

After dinner, I stood atop a viewpoint and watched the golden sun set behind the mountains of Milos' neighboring islands.

The next day, I set sail for Athens with a heavy heart seeing I fell in love with this diverse island that is – in my eyes – one of Earth's most marvelous and untouched paradises.

There are two main ways to visit Milos. The first and cheapest is by ferry, which leaves from the port of Athens. The second mode of transportation is by a charter plane departing from Athens.

The flight is pricier than a ferry ticket, but worth the extra money if vacation time is short and a speedier transport to the island is needed.

Sailing opportunities closer than you think

Contributing writer

Germany isn't a country solely populated by land lovers. Throughout history until modern times, this country raised generations of intrepid mariners, and American boaters stationed in Germany can also join this country's nautical ranks.

Aside from coastal sailing far up in the north, American boaters in the KMC will find opportunities closer to home. Such local waterways include the Rhein, Neckar and Mosel rivers as well as recreational lakes such as the Bostalsee located near Baumholder. Many of these waterways have boat rental businesses. However, obtaining the right to boat in Germany isn't without its cost and price, or more specifically, getting the German boating license.

Nautical licensing isn't an issue when it comes to boating on smaller, non-commercialized rivers and lakes with light boat traffic. All an American boater needs is waterway common sense. However, on larger bodies of water where boat traffic is dense, a degree of knowledge and practical experience is a must. This is where the "Deutsches Segel-Schein," or German sailing license, comes in. Such waterways include not only the open seas, but also navigating bigger rivers with international traffic such as the Rhein, the Mosel, the Danube, the Main, the Neckar and the Elbe where sizable barges, ships and countless pleasure boats set sail; this is where discretion dictates a formal knowledge of maritime rules and regulations and mastery of any sort of vessel.

Along these rivers, rarely is there a boat rental business that will rent out anything short of a raft unless the sailing license is in a customer's hands. Thus, American boaters wanting to sail their own boat or a rental need to take a course.

There are three levels of courses that are geared at preparing boaters for sailing on inland waters. The basic level, called "Grundkurs," demonstrates the elementary rules, regulations and maneuvers of boating. After the Grundkurs comes the "Theoretical and Practical Inland Sport-Vessel License" that delves even deeper into nautical rules, regulations and maneuvers. An additional requirement for boating theory is introduced for those boaters wishing to sail on Lake Constance, known as the Bodensee, which is a massive body of water located in Southern Germany. An advanced course entailing training for regatta involvement and competition escalates the inland course mentioned above a step further for boaters who wish to take sailing a few notches higher than just leisure boating.

There exists two more levels of boating licenses that take into account the operation of larger crafts such as yachts and various types of sailing ships, one of which is for coastal waterways and for deep, international waters. The basic permit for this level can usually be attained with 15 to 25 hours of instruction and is the general point of departure for future additional instruction. The next level is for the "Coastal Sports' Sailing License," which requires concentrated theory and comprehensive practical experience. This license opens Europe's entire coastline and the Mediterranean to boaters. Special instruction is also mandatory for sailors who want to work on their regatta sailing skills and serve as skippers.

Although there are relatively few sailing schools in Germany that provide course instruction in English, there is one prominent school that does called "Segelschule Starnberg," or Sailing School Starnberg, which is located 30 minutes from Munich. This school features instruction in all levels, individual instruction and flexible schedules. They can arrange for long-weekend intensive courses to accommodate Americans who are stationed a few hours away from Starnberg. Many local Services and MWR Outdoor Recreation offices, as well as local Rod and Gun Clubs, can aide an American boater in finding out the basics of fees and locations for boating licensing, or at least where to obtain this information. It should be mentioned that although renting a boat in Germany is relatively inexpensive, obtaining a license could be expensive depending on the license an American boater seeks.

Fishing in Germany within anglers' reach

by Michael J. Meese
Contributing writer

Germany's seas, rivers, lakes and streams are home to a multitude of fish that aren't only a challenge to catch, but also a tasty main dish.

Such fish include brown, brook, lake and rainbow trout and lake char, taimen, grayling, pike, walleye, perch and carp.

Like most anything in Germany, you need a license to fish. Though obtaining a license is not as easy as receiving one in the states, it is still accessible for military members serving in Germany.

Generally, in order to legally catch a fish in Germany you need two important documents: a "Fischereischein," or fishing license, and a "Tageskarte," or permit. The fishing license confirms that you attended and passed a special course and exam. The license allows you to obtain a permit for fishing a specified body of water for a specified period of time.

Obtaining a German fishing license is time consuming and pricey. Its process entails taking a 30-hour course followed by a comprehensive fishing exam that tests what students learned. A good understanding of the German language is a must. The cost of obtaining the license is around $200. The license needs to be renewed annually for about $22.

But anglers and their family members who are part of the U.S. military in Germany have another option to complete the German fishing course and exam.

Rod and Gun Clubs are located on almost every major U.S. installation in Germany, and these guys are the ones to hook up anglers with a fishing license. They offer the course and exam in English and help military members get their standard German fishing license once they have completed the exam.

Another method of legally fishing in Germany is getting a 90-day visitor's license called a "Besucher-Fischereischein."

This method involves anglers presenting a valid stateside fishing license accompanied by an official German translation of the license to the local German government agencies in the desired location for fishing. These agencies are called "Kreisverwaltung," or Ordnungsamt, which can be found in the "Rathaus," or city hall. You must also present identification such as a passport or driver's license and one passport photo for placement on the fishing license card. No course or exam is necessary, and the cost of a visitor's license is around $28; the license needs to be renewed for the same cost every 90 days.

Once a fishing license is obtained, the next step is getting a permit, which can be purchased for a day, week or month. These permits are available from a variety of private businesses and organizations that own or lease the rights to favorite fishing holes in a desired angling area. These businesses and organizations are usually regional fishing clubs called "Angelvereine," private landowners, campsites, hotels or tackle shops. Permits generally cost around $15.

Within and around the KMC, there is an abundance of lakes and streams for fishing with a license — either permanent or a visitor's. Also, the Rhein, Neckar and Mosel rivers are close by for fishing opportunities.

In France, there are artificial lakes where anglers can fish without any license at all. These small lakes are filled with trout and other species, and the cost of dropping a line in its waters is around $10.

These privately owned lakes even rent out fishing lines and sell bait; they are located throughout France, but there is one across the border from Germany just outside the French town of Bitche. Bitche is a little more than an hour drive from the KMC.

There are many options for the American angler stationed in Germany to cast out their lines and reel in some of Europe's finest fish. The options vary in price and time needed to accomplish them, but nonetheless, fishing in Germany and in France is not out of reach.

Dyeing Easter Eggs

To Start

- Cover the table with layers of old newspaper to soak up any spills.
- Remember to have a lot of napkins handy.
- Use empty egg cartons as drying racks.
- For fast color, mix seven to eight drops of food coloring into 1 cup of hot water. Stir in 1/4 cup vinegar.

Homemade Dyes

To make your own natural dyes, boil common ingredients in water with a tablespoon of vinegar until the desired shade is reached. Strain to remove the solids.

- To Make Yellow — Yellow onion skins and ground tumeric
- To Make Orange — Same as yellow, but with beet juice added
- To Make Pink — Cranberry juice concentrate
- To Make Red — Beets and paprika
- To Make Blue — Canned blueberries, red cabbage and grape juice concentrate
- To Make Green — Spinach and/or kale
- To Make Brown — Strong brewed coffee or tea

And don't forget to let the eggs dry between coats!

Other Fun Ideas

Crayon Easter Eggs

Take a wax crayon and draw designs on the egg then dip it in the dye and allow to dry. The dye won't soak into the wax, so the artwork will shine through.

Spotted Easter eggs

To give your eggs a multi-colored spotted look, use stickers. Any shape stickers will work. You can apply the stickers to the egg and then dye, or mix it up a bit and dye the egg one color, apply the stickers, and then dye the egg again a different color.

Tissue paper dyed eggs

All you need for this effect is some multi-colored tissue paper (the non-recyled paper works best) and some water. Spray the egg with water, place squares of paper on the egg one at a time and set aside to dry. You may have to spray the egg again to make the tissue paper very wet. When dry, the paper will fall off, giving the egg a colored stained glass look.

Special Effects

• For spattered eggs, dip in a base color and let dry. Dip a clean toothbrush in a contrasting color and carefully flick bristles with your fingers to make the paint splatter onto the egg.

• For marbleized eggs, coat the eggs with a base color and let dry. Mix canola oil or other light cooking oil into another color dye (1 teaspoon oil per cup of dye) and quickly dunk the eggs. The oil will repel the color in some places and the dye will adhere to others, creating a marbled effect.

How to Train Your Dragon (PG) — Viking teenager Hiccup lives on the island of Berk, where fighting dragons is a way of life. The teen's smarts and offbeat sense of humor don't sit too well with his tribe or its chief. However, when Hiccup is included in Dragon Training with the other Viking teens, he sees his chance to prove he has what it takes to be a fighter. But when he encounters (and ultimately befriends) an injured dragon, his world is flipped upside down, and what started out as Hiccup's one shot to prove himself turns into an opportunity to set a new course for the future of the entire tribe.

Starring Gerard Butler and America Ferrara.

When in Rome (PG-13) — An ambitious young New Yorker, disillusioned with romance, takes a whirlwind trip to Rome where she defiantly plucks magic coins from a fountain of love, inexplicably igniting the passion of those who threw them in — a sausage magnate, a street magician, an adoring painter and a self-admiring model. But when a charming reporter pursues her with equal zest, how will she know if his love is the real thing?

Starring Kristen Bell and Josh Duhamel.

LUXURY AND PERFORMANCE COME STANDARD

With more than 60 models to choose from, there's a BMW model to suit every military lifestyle, and your custom-built vehicle can usually be configured and delivered to you in Europe within just a few weeks.

Because many standard features built into every BMW are often expensive additions in other makes of cars, the BMW Military Sales price for a well-loaded BMW (including U.S. Home Shipment) is much lower than you probably think.

Since 1984, nearly 40,000 happy U.S. military customers have made PCS the world's largest BMW Military Sales Agency. Don't miss the opportunity to use your overseas posting to take advantage of the lowest prices offered anywhere. Why not drop by to find out just how affordable an Ultimate Driving Machine© really is?

VOLVO GETS NAUGHTY

Safety, Scandinavian design and environmental consideration are core principles of the Volvo brand. With the all-new Volvo S60, a new dimension is now being revealed - The Naughty Volvo.

The all-new Volvo S60 - pure driving pleasure created with 100 percent passion. Just one look at the initial design sketches was enough for the chassis experts to understand that the challenge was going to be exceptional. They realized this is a sport sedan unlike any previous Volvo and without a doubt, the most dynamic Volvo model ever presented.

For the U.S., the S60 is introduced with a 3.0L 6-cyl pumping 300 + horsepower coupled with a Geartronic transmission and AWD. Impressive performance and remarkable handling along with Volvo's world-class safety make this a truly exciting new car. Contact Capitol Motors for more information and test drive reservations.

2011 FORD FIESTA

Introducing the all-new 2011 Ford Fiesta! Building on its success as a top seller in Europe, the Fiesta makes its long awaited debut in the U.S. this summer but is available for order now for U.S. military serving overseas.

With a projected 40mpg/hwy and several other class-exclusive features and technologies, the sporty Fiesta doesn't sacrifice style and function for economy and fun, and according to Car and Driver magazine, "American drivers are in for a treat…" Fiesta is available in a sedan and five-door hatchback and starts at just over $13,000.

If you purchase while serving overseas you can select from incoming local inventory for immediate delivery or you can custom order your Ford at no additional charge – your color, your options, your way – for delivery overseas or stateside. For more information about Fiesta and your overseas buying benefits, stop by your on-base ENCS location or visit encs.com/ford.

I CAN.

When you say those words, the impossible becomes possible. Doors open. At Porsche, we know the power of I Can.

We say it every time we need to shave off an ounce of weight or squeeze another horse from the engine.

I Can gives us hope and energy and motivation to do what other, and maybe even ourselves, didn´t think was possible. Can you own a Porsche?

Just say the words.

KA advertisers living on base/post and offering child care services are on the approved list of Family Child Care (FCC) providers. Those living off base/post offering these services in the KA are not screened by FCC. Use good judgement when choosing off base/post child care services. Qualifications should be checked and references requested before placing any child in the custody of child care providers who have not been screened.*Anyone providing more than 10 hours of care per week, on a regular basis, MUST be licensed by the FCC office. If you do not have a license and provide care, you could possibly lose your base housing privileges.**

Looking to buy a late model VW Golf TDI Diesel low mileage US specs 5 speed only!! Call: 0162-2766420

Fairy Godmother Needed: I am desperately seeking a responsible, trustworthy, loving family to take care of my daughters while I am deployed. I am a newly divorced, active duty AF SNCO, single parent of two daughters ages 12 and 14 . We PCS'd to Ramstein six months ago and now I am scheduled to deploy in Sept for six months. I am looking for a loving family in the Ramstein area to be sort of a foster family to us. In order to avoid adding additional stress and hardship to my daughters by having to relocate them back to the States during my deployment, which would mean making them change schools again, I would prefer they stay here in the same schools with their friends. I am starting this quest early so I can get to know a family over the next six months until I deploy. I will pay for expenses plus extras for your time and love. If you are seriously interested, please send me your "family resume" to: dennpd08@yahoo.com

Looking for a Jamaican (or similar sounding) vocalist for solo and collaboration on the song "Life…It Ain't Easy" (Vitamin C) that our singing group is working on for our upcoming June performances. Order of Daedalians

2010 Daedalian Scholarship

APPLICATIONS DUE 30 APR 2010

The 19th "Billy" Mitchell Flight Order of Daedalians Chapter is sponsoring one $1,500 scholarship for deserving high school seniors that intend to pursue a career in military aviation. Applicants need to complete the application found at http://www.daedalians.org/foundation/scholarships.htm

and email it to Lt Col Matt Bowers, daedalians@ramstein.af.mil (also use this email address for questions and requests) no later than 30 April 2010. The national Daedalian Foundation may match the scholarship to double the award. Junior ROTC advisors at both Kaiserslautern High School and Ramstein High School also have the scholarship information.

About the Daedalians: The Order of Daedalians honors, as its Founder Members, all WW I aviators who were commissioned as officers and rated as military pilots no later than the Armistice on 11 November 1918. It perpetuates their names as the first to fly our country's airplanes in time of war. The Order's membership of commissioned, warrant and flight officer military pilots and WASPs, with its worldwide network of Daedalian Flights and its comprehensive awards program, supports the military services and other aerospace activities. The Awards and Scholarship Programs of the Order and Foundation encourage patriotism, integrity, and good character in our nation's youth; military careers as commissioned pilots; safety of flight, and excellence in the performance of military duties. The Daedalian Foundation's scholarship program also promotes study in aerospace disciplines.
