The 86th Airfield Operations Flight shut down flight operations on Ramstein Monday to conduct essential repairs to the airfield's lighting systems and associated components.

Airmen and German civil engineers worked together from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. making repairs that are critical to airfield systems.

"Ramstein is the gateway to Europe," said Capt. Casey Hayes, 86th Operations Support Squadron airfield operations flight commander. "When you travel from the U.S. toward any (deployed environment) current operations and the rest of Europe, you're stopping at Ramstein. We have a commitment to the wing, command and the Air Force to stay operational 24 hours a day. To do that, we must ensure the airfield is maintained."

"These repairs are vital to the continuation of instrument flight rules operations at Ramstein," said Senior Master Sgt. Nicholas LeMay, 86th Airfield Operations airfield manager. "This allows the critical missions to continue during times of low visibility and at night."

During times of low visibility, pilots utilize an instrument landing system. The ILS at Ramstein is the only Category III A ILS in the Department of Defense. This category allows pilots to land in conditions with visibility no less than 660 feet, which is needed for the foggy mornings and snowy winters in Germany.

During the shutdown, Airmen and local nationals conducted a vault assault where the 786th Civil Engineer Squadron power production team pumped water out of underground vaults, containing lighting panels. This allowed the German airfield lighting team to enter and safely repair or replace lighting remotes and other lighting components, ensuring a properly lit airfield.

Other sustainment operations included barrier maintenance, pavement samples and pavement repair.

McQuistion to relinquish command Thursday

Maj. Gen. Patricia McQuistion

Maj. Gen. Patricia McQuistion will relinquish command of the 21st Theater Sustainment Command to Brig. Gen. Aundre F. Piggee during a change of command ceremony at 9:30 a.m. Thursday on the NCO Field on Daenner Kaserne.

Two years after taking command of the 21st TSC, McQuistion will depart the KMC and Germany to become the commanding general of the U.S. Army Sustainment Command in Rock Island, Ill. The ASC, which supports Army, joint and coalition forces, is a global organization charged with providing frontline logistics support to combat units. It provides sustainment level logistics by synchronizing acquisition, logistics and technology support from the strategic through the operational to the tactical level.

Piggee, served as the deputy assistant chief of staff for logistics with United Nations Command, Combined Forces Command and U.S. Forces Korea before coming to the 21st TSC.

The logistics staff at USFK is responsible for all logistics required to support the USFK mission during armistice, crisis and contingencies as well as for establishing policies, procedures for transportation, munitions, petroleum, logistics readiness and planning, mortuary affairs, maintenance, and medical.

Due to the number of available parking spaces, invited guests must have their parking permits. All entry roads to Daenner Kaserne will be manned by force protection personnel who will direct and facilitate traffic and parking access.

Superior Airmen, professional warriors

by Lt. Col. Matthew Douglas
86th Maintenance Squadron commander

What exactly does it mean to be a superior Airman and professional warrior?

Put these concepts together and you have the total Airman — an Airman who represents everything we are (and want to be) as a force, an Airman who will join the team to bring a unit to unsurpassed levels of efficiency and performance, and an Airman who is full of pride and achievement.

Superior Airmen live our core values of integrity first, service before self and excellence in all we do. To that end, superior Airmen are also able to balance their home and work lives as well as their physical, mental, emotional and spiritual well-being.

> "Superior Airmen live our core values of integrity first, service before self, and excellence in all we do. To that end, superior Airmen are also able to balance their home and work lives as well as their physical, mental, emotional and spiritual well-being."

Finally, superior Airmen show respect for others.

Superior Airmen have integrity. They always do the right thing, no matter who's looking and no matter the consequence. We often hear of Airmen committing offenses or taking shortcuts under the guise of "pressure to perform the mission." The superior Airman concept eliminates this issue.

Simply, the mission is correctly and safely accomplished every time because it's the right thing to do.

Superior Airmen practice service before self. They are the first to volunteer for a challenging task, leadership opportunity, deployment or assignment. They are the first to bring aid to those in need. They are the first to develop those around them into better Airmen, professionals and people.

Superior Airmen simply look high and low in the organization, see where they can be relevant and contribute. These things they do with little regard for their own personal standing.

Superior Airmen practice excellence in all they do. We are the world's best Air Force because of the excellence of Air Force personnel. Simply put, no room exists for mediocrity in today's (or tomorrow's) Air Force. Through excellence, superior Airmen guarantee we are and will remain the best.

Superior Airmen are balanced when it comes to work and home life. They understand a stable home life translates into a productive work life. To that end, balanced Airmen are also fit — physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually.

Finally, superior Airmen are respectful of others, no matter their race, religion, color or gender.

When it comes to respect, no tolerance exists for discrimination or harassment of any kind. Respect creates an environment where professionalism is the norm, diversity is admired and welcomed, and members feel free to contribute their best to the mission and work centers.

Integrity, service, excellence, balance and respect define the superior Airman concept. But a warrior cannot be a superior Airman without also being the best at performing his or her closure for us to work on barrier maintenance," said Staff Sgt. Frank Furman, 786th Civil Engineer Squadron barrier maintenance NCOIC. "It's good to be able to concentrate more on our work being done and doing a good job rather than listening and moving when the mobile radio calls for an inbound aircraft."

He said his crew would normally be out of the way in about 30 minutes, taking everything with them to ensure no foreign object damage is done to aircraft landing.

"To fly at night and during inclement weather, we must have an operational lighting system," Hayes said. "We have a large job ahead of us that covers 12.5 million square feet of airfield pavement and two runways."

Another aspect of ensuring the DOD's only Category III A instrument landing system is operational is ensuring the markings on the runways and taxiways are visible and properly marked to prevent vehicles from interfering with the ILS signal.

"The instrument hold lines are repainted to increase the visibility of markings and enhance airfield safety for both aircrew members and airfield vehicle operators," LeMay said.

He added that if someone were to obstruct the ILS signal, the pilot's on-board readout could be wrong, which is dangerous when landing a multimillion dollar aircraft.

"Tower approval is needed before crossing that line," said the 21-year airfield veteran and Michigan native.

Airfield operations is scheduled to shut down the airfield again to facilitate more maintenance in the future. However, Hayes added that mission critical and in-flight emergencies will still be able to land within a two-hour window.

Airman 1st Class Michael Bean, 786th Civil Engineer Squadron electric power production specialist, operates a generator to pump water from the airfield lighting vaults Monday on Ramstein. The water was pumped from the vaults to support the maintenance and repair of the airfield lighting system on the Ramstein runways, taxiways and flightline.

This will not affect the normal number of nighttime-flying operations during nights the airfield is not closed.

Resilience study can help DOD officials strengthen programs

by Elaine Sanchez
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — The military has a plethora of programs aimed at building resilience in service members and their families, but needs a better system in place to measure their success, a study has revealed.

Commissioned by officials from the Defense Centers of Excellence for Psychological Health and Traumatic Brain Injury, the Rand Corp. study examined 23 military and civilian programs that address psychological resilience and offered recommendations on how the military can improve their quality and effectiveness.

Resilience is a keystone to a service member's overall fitness, said U.S. Public Health Service Cmdr. George Durgin, the centers' resilience division chief in the resilience and prevention directorate.

"If you have a service member who can adapt and overcome to adverse events and then turn back to a steady plane, a green zone, that's what we're looking for," he said.

The question, he added, is, "How do we get into a heightened event and then get back to that green zone?"

To start, experts reviewed 270 scientific publications on psychological resilience. From the literature, the team identified 20 factors, including positive thinking and coping, realism and behavioral control, that were scientifically proven to be the most effective at building resilience.

The team then gathered information on 23 service-specific resilience programs that are targeted to military members and their families and addressed at least one phase of deployment. Their purpose was to see if the factors they had identified as effective were integrated into these programs and, if so, to what extent.

Experts also looked to see how these programs assessed their success.

According to the study's findings, published in the report "Promoting Psychological Resilience in the U.S. Military," the programs incorporated several of the resilience factors, but need a more standard evaluation system to measure success.

The programs employ a wide range of measures to gauge their effectiveness, the report noted, and just five of the 23 programs have conducted formal assessments.

"These programs are popular with leaders and troops, and intuitively we think they are having a positive effect," Durgin said. "But the bottom line is there hasn't been a formal approach to measuring success."

The findings also showed programs have a wide range of definitions for resilience.

The study listed a series of recommendations aimed at improving the quality and delivery of resilience programs.

First, Defense Department leaders and policy makers should create a department-wide definition of resilience, the report suggested. This will help to focus programs, it explained, and provide guidance for measuring outcomes.

DOD specialists also need to strengthen existing programs, the report said, through an evaluation of existing programs' strengths and weaknesses. Programs that show the most potential can be combined, the report suggested, citing the Army's Comprehensive Soldier Fitness program as a possible candidate.

Officials also should standardize resilience measures to allow for program comparison.

To help wade through the vast number of programs, the report said, DOD officials should develop a resource guide that compares and contrasts programs for service members and their families.

Researchers at the Defense Centers of Excellence are developing a database of service-specific programs, Durgin noted. This will help people find programs quickly and also help to direct future programs. If an effective program already is in place, he said, "why reinvent the wheel?"

The report also cited a need to ensure that scientifically proven resilience factors — such as positive thinking, coping and behavioral control — are incorporated into programs.

Finally, DOD officials should engage senior military leaders and ensure rigorous program evaluation is in place.

Studies such as this one, along with research by the Defense Centers of Excellence, can help the military focus and strengthen its resilience programs, Durgin noted.

The overall goal, he added, is to ensure service members and their families remain resilient. It's normal to move out of a steady state when confronted with combat and other wartime challenges, Durgin said, "but the key part for us is that they can always get back. And if they can't, that's when we have to step in to help them."

assigned duties and exerting robust leadership in the performance of those duties. Superior Airmen are also professional warriors.

Professional warriors are competent and diligent. Professional warriors perform tasks better and more efficiently than anyone else. They become the best at what they do. Despite being the best, they are diligent at seeking opportunities to improve their technical knowledge and professional skills.

Moreover, they pass on their expertise to those who are less experienced, less qualified and less capable. They mould the future technical experts through hard work and mentorship.

> "Superior Airmen and professional warriors represent the foundation of a compliance culture. They also represent the foundation of an innovative, proactive and regenerative culture."

Professional warriors are compliant and safe. Compliance and safety seemingly go hand-in-hand. However, one could argue that a person can be compliant and not safe.

Likewise, a person can be safe and non-compliant. Professional warriors must understand and apply these concepts synergistically. Safety and compliance are not options only to be used when convenient. Safety and compliance are qualifiers to successfully meet mission requirements.

This is how we ensure every mission meets its intended purpose. The professional warrior understands this, exemplifies this and passes it down the line.

Superior Airmen and professional warriors represent the foundation of a compliance culture. They also represent the foundation of an innovative, proactive and regenerative culture.

There is nothing new about these concepts; they are consistently advocated by Airmen across the Air Force.

Ultimately, exceptional mission success will abound when Airmen balance these concepts and optimize their performance in all aspects of their lives.

7th CSC strengthens response capabilities at Guardian Shield 11

Staff Sgt. Timothy Butler puts on his protective gear while Staff Sgt. Ralph Lahen stands ready to assist. Both Soldiers are chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear specialists with the 773rd Civil Support Team, 7th Civil Support Command, who participated in a field training exercise as part of Guardian Shield 11 Aug. 5 on Rhine Ordnance Barracks in Kaiserslautern.

Conducting foreign consequence management operations in response to a crisis situation can truly test one's strength of character.

This was the situation facing the Soldiers and civilians of 21st Theater Sustainment Command and the 7th Civil Support Command during an annual exercise conducted Aug. 1 to 9 at Rhine Ordnance Barracks and Panzer Kaserne in Kaiserslautern.

During exercise Guardian Shield 11, the 7th CSC tackled a scenario involving a nerve agent terrorist attack in a European city affecting more than 250,000 people.

Col. Joseph Tirone, support operations officer for the 21st TSC, led a cell of foreign consequence subject matter experts from U.S. European Command, U.S. Northern Command, U.S. Army Europe and the Defense Threat Reduction Agency, who focused on assessing the 7th CSC's response to a nation's request for U.S. government assistance.

The 7th CSC supplies trained and ready, forward-stationed consequence management command and control, civil support team, and civil affairs capabilities.

It may be tasked with providing immediate response or augmenting the effort to provide assistance to host nation authorities through the Department of State or lead federal agency as directed by USAREUR.

Chief Warrant Officer 3 Nadine Johnson, the Transportation Integration Branch land section chief for the 21st Theater Sustainment Command working as a transportation officer for sustainment operations, discusses transportation logistics with other support personnel at U.S. Army Europe's annual exercise Guardian Sheild 11. Subject matter experts from a variety of organizations assessed 7th CSC staff, focusing on foreign consequence management during a command post exercise to support a host nation's request for U.S. government assistance.

Soldiers from the 7th Civil Support Command, civilians and other support personnel work at their command post stations during Guardian Shield 11.

Bill Grant, a consequence management specialist for the 7th CSC, said the exercise allows many agencies to come together and improve cooperation between all the different agencies involved in dealing with a crisis situation.

"This provides the 21st TSC and the 7th CSC a chance to practice what we would be doing in a real world event," Grant said. "There are certain tactics, techniques and doctrine that are written in any scenario that are not scripted. It gives us a chance to practice the techniques we would use in the real world in order to refine and correct what needs to be corrected before it really matters."

Members of the 7th CSC Incident Management Team gathered into their respective sections to discuss any sudden changes within the exercise requiring problem solving while keeping the exercise on track.

GS11 also included a field training exercise that brought the Emergency Management Assessment Team, from Schwetzingen, Germany, the 12th Chemical Company from Schweinfurt, Germany, and the 773rd Civil Support Team from Kaiserslautern, together for the first time in order to train as one coherent unit.

Chief Warrant Officer 3 Nadine Johnson, the transportation integration branch land section chief for the 21st TSC working as a transportation officer for sustainment operations during the exercise said, "In the end this exercise gives participants a structure with all the tactics, techniques, and procedures that we have established."

German Polizei Corner

Last year in Germany, more than 40,000 vehicles were stolen.

According to a statistical survey conducted by the Landstuhl Polizei department in 2010, 98 percent of Americans whose cars were stolen or broken into failed to secure their vehicles properly.

Vehicle thefts and break-ins can be avoided.

A safety-conscious attitude and the activation of an anti-theft system can avoid damage and worries.

Always pull your ignition key, even when you are away for only a short moment, like when getting gas. Only then is the anti-theft device activated.

Also remember to let the steering wheel lock click into place.

Always close windows, doors, the trunk, the sunroof and the gas cap — even if you only move away from the vehicle for a short time.

A locked gas cap makes it difficult for a thief to get gas at no cost.

Event introduces community to Army garrison

by Rick Scavetta
U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern

Each summer, hundreds of Soldiers and their families move to Kaiserslautern — some of whom have never lived in an overseas military community.

To help them become acquainted with the people and services that support them during their tour, U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern sponsors an introductory event — Operation Meet the Garrison.

"We invite agencies within our community to extend a welcome to our families and introduce the services and events they provide," said Cheryl Carter, and Army Community Service outreach coordinator who helps organize the annual event.

This year, the event will take place from 2 to 7 p.m. Aug. 26 at Armstrong's Club on Vogelweh housing. One of the organizations planning for the event is the garrison's directorate of emergency services, which include military police and firefighters.

"We'll be there to discuss the many things we do in the community, to include everything from working with the Air Force on law enforcement to fire prevention," said Master Sgt. Ken Pryor, the U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern provost sergeant.

Staff from the DES will offer tips to stay safe when at home and in the community. Mascots Darren the Lion and Sparky the Dog will also be there, Pryor said.

The free event will include more than 73 community agencies, said Sarahjane Phillips, ACS marketing specialist. There will be hand outs, goodies, bouncy castles and lots of fun activities, she said.

"It's not your average garrison event. It's for the entire community at large," Phillips said. "It's about having fun and enriching your life."

German local national chosen to conduct training in Saudi Arabia

German local national Carmen Kaufmann, a contracting professional for more than 26 years, recently made a trip to Saudi Arabia to train a team from the Office of the Program Manager Saudi Arabian National Guard Modernization Program.

The trip, along with the accompanying training classes, was the result of a request made by Ophelia McCarroll, the director of contracting at OPM-SANG.

As the enterprise business system manager at the 409th Contracting Support Brigade, Kaufmann is responsible for managing various online acquisition systems as well as overseeing the management, training and developing guidance for internal customers.

"Ms. Kaufmann and I worked together for five years at the Wiesbaden Contracting Center," McCarroll said. "Her tenacity and dedication to the center and to the electronic business initiatives was so strong that she soon became the go-to person for acquisition related electronic business tools in Europe.

"During her visit she trained a melting pot of people from various professions. There were Americans, Asians, Arabs, engineers, program analyst, master gunners, medical practitioners, logisticians and infantry men and women," McCarroll added.

Upon learning of the "by name" request from OPM SANG, Kaufmann's supervisors and command were more than happy to lend out one of their best.

"Kaufmann is extremely good at what she does and we are happy to support fellow organizations with our finest," said Col. Debra Daniels, commander of the 409th CSB.

In addition to the training, Kaufmann had a chance to see and experience a different side of Army contracting.

"This was definitely something new for me. I was in a deployed environment. I got to see and experience first hand what our Soldiers have to go through," Kaufmann said. "They would have to wear masks because the sand would blow so hard. I could smell the oil in the air. I got a true appreciation for what our military goes through when they deploy."

Airman becomes Belgian Hero completing tour of death

by Senior Airman Katherine Holt
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The sound of the finish line could be heard from a half a mile through the deafening throbbing of shin splints, swollen feet and tight ankles.

"When I heard the drums and people cheering at the finish line, I knew that I made it," said Airman 1st Class Arturo Nunez, 86th Communications Squadron knowledge operator.

With only 100 meters left of the 62 mile hike, his body wanted to give out.

"Every step hurt, but I knew I couldn't give up," Nunez added. "A guy saw my knees start to buckle and put his arm around me and said 'let's go.'"

Though barely putting one foot in front of the other, his body stricken with paralyzing pain and legs covered in poison ivy, Nunez made it across the finish line in 21 hours and seven minutes.

The Navasota, Texas, native got the idea to take on this feat from a local national in his office. Harald Jacubeit, 86th Communications Squadron records adviser, challenged Nunez to "Bornem," Belguim's annual "Dodentocht-Kadee," or tour of death.

"He looked like he was very fit," said Jacubeit, who has completed the hike three times before. "I have invited other Airmen and only two others accepted. He is the only Airman to finish the hike."

Accepting the challenge with only a month and half until the hike didn't leave Nunez with much time to prepare.

"I tried to get in anywhere from six to 10 miles a day," he said. "I started out walking on the treadmill at a 4 miles per hour pace for one hour. Then I mixed jogging in with the walking."

This training regiment led to the plan Nunez put together to complete the race in the required 24 hours. With only a backpack with a first aid kit, change of socks, extra sneakers, a hooded sweater and an extra set of clothes, Nunez started the hike at 9 p.m. Aug. 12.

"I jogged the first three miles just to get out of the gaggle of participants," Nunez said. "After I found my pace, I jogged for 15 to 20 minutes every hour to keep the blood flowing to my lower extremities."

Around 7 a.m. the next morning, Nunez was at the halfway mark.

"At the half way point you are offered a hot meal for breakfast and a place to rest," he said. "Mr. Jacubeit warned me that the halfway point is where most participants quit, so I set a limit for myself. I ate a quick snack for breakfast, changed my socks, reapplied my bandages and started going again."

Nunez said the half way point is challenging, mentally and physically.

"I kept telling myself that I had to continue, I have to accomplish this," he said.

Airman 1st Class Arturo Nunez, 86th Communications Squadron knowledge operator, and Harald Jacubeit, 86th CS records adviser, recently competed in "Bornem," Belguim's annual Dodentocht-Kadee (tour of death). Jacubeit challenged Nunez to the grueling 62 mile hike. Nunez completed the tour of death in 21 hours and seven minutes.

Hoping to finish at the same time with his coworker, Jacubeit, Nunez tried to start jogging again, but didn't keep it up for long. With 18 miles left to go, he would not jog for the remainder of the hike.

"Around the time that I had 30 kilometers left, the shin splints kicked in and my ankles began to tighten," he said. "I knew then that I was going to walk the rest."

In the end, it didn't matter how he finished.

"There was such a sense of accomplishment after finishing the hike," Nunez said. "I had bragging rights now. I did something that not everyone else could do."

Jacubeit agreed that the feeling of accomplishment is like no other.

"Finishing gives you happiness like getting married and having children," he said.

He slept during the five hour ride back to his dorm room and had to call on a fellow Airman to carry him to his room.

"I could barely move my legs to get out of the car once we parked at the dorms. I knew there was no way I would be able to walk up the stairs."

He slept until 11 a.m. the next morning and said he didn't start moving until 8 p.m.

"I felt like I was learning how to walk again," he said. "My muscles and joints were tight and I was taking baby steps to get where I needed to go."

Nunez received a certificate of completion and plans to frame it along with the bracelet he wore during the hike. Although he is physically fit, Nunez admitted that if he did it again he would start training much earlier. He advises anyone who wants to participate in the future to train physically and mentally before they set out to accomplish this event.

"I would definitely advise future participants to start training with cardio and endurance months before the hike," he said. "Physical fitness is only half the battle with this hike though; they also need to be mentally ready for what they face. Only the crazy will survive."

US Army Garrison Kaiserslautern earns conservation award

by Martha Wiley
U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern

A U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern team recently won the Secretary of the Army Energy and Water Conservation Award in the small team category for energy efficiency and energy management.

The small team included Bill Mack, the garrison's public works director, and Paul Lindemer, chief of the facilities engineering division. Lindemer will accept the award from M. Katherine Hammack, assistant secretary of the Army for installation, energy and environment, during the Governergy conference in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"This is an Army-wide award and is great recognition of our efforts to conserve and manage energy," said Bill Holz, deputy director of the garrison's public works directorate.

At U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern's Directorate of Public Works, Marcus Jung, assistant chief of the facility's engineering division, inspects a light emitting diode street light that will soon be installed at several garrison installations. The garrison's conservation efforts were recently recognized by the secretary of the Army.

The garrison team found opportunities in Kaiserslautern to conserve energy and reduce costs for heating, hot water and electricity without compromising the Army mission. They oversaw the replacement of hot air heating with radiant heat systems and added exterior insulation on two buildings at the Kaiserslautern Army Depot.

The garrison is replacing sodium street lights at the depot, Panzer and Daenner kasernes, and Landstuhl hospital with light emitting diode lights. Some buildings with high hot water use, such as dining facilities and fitness centers, had their hot water heating systems replaced with solar water heaters. The Army is also installing photovoltaic solar panels on buildings.

The awards program was developed to help implement the Army's overall goal of reducing energy use and costs. It recognizes significant achievements in energy and water conservation by installations and individuals in the active Army, Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

Award winners must demonstrate that they have cost-effectively improved energy efficiency and reduced energy use within the installation, Holz said. Award winners not only improve the Army's energy future by improving efficiency, they also reduce greenhouse gases, use new, clean renewable technologies, and promote energy awareness.

"This is a very, very important program to us," Holz said. "We have to conserve energy to support the Army's mission."

Visit sunny Sirmione

by Brittny Mejia
AdvantiPro

Boats speed across the water as children play on the shore and enjoy the Italian sunshine. Tourists relax and savor gelato from the Gelateria while they chat in different languages: German, Dutch and Italian, of course.

Resort vacation? Not a chance. The hotel pools throughout Sirmione remain empty, and for good reason.

Tourists would rather head to Lago di Garda, or Lake Garda as it is commonly called, and spend hours diving off the dock or simply swimming in the water. Others choose instead to sit and drink in the view of the country's largest lake. Finally, the more adventurous ones rent a boat and take a spin on the water, admiring the beauty of the mountainous, green scenery.

Sirmione, located in the province of Verona, only about two hours south of the Austrian border, is a small town on Lake Garda. It is not only a "town on the lake," but also an island, as the heart of the city is located on a large peninsula that ventures into the southern tip of the lake.

Do not be fooled and think Sirmione is solely a tourist temple. Alongside the bars, restaurants and lakeside activities are cultural attractions such as the ancient Roman ruins and a medieval castle, Rocca Saligera. Though the lakeside view is impressive, the view from the castle tops it all.

Visitors that get tired of Sirmione, although it is hard to do, will find plenty to do. The heart of popular cities such as Verona or Milan are less than a day trip away. And for people without cars, the many other towns around the lake provide just as much, if not more, to do than Sirmione itself. Nevertheless, it is important to have a transportation plan in order to fully enjoy the vacation. Public transportation is relatively good, with options ranging from ferries to busses and taxis.

The nightlife proves to be just as interesting as the daytime activities, as tourists and residents alike sit at the bars enjoying music and good company. Campari is a good drink choice for those interested in the full Italian experience. But regardless of the beverage, you are guaranteed to have a fun, relaxing night.

Italy has something exciting to offer everyone. The main concern is attempting to fit it all into one vacation! However, wherever you end up, make sure to take a trip to Lake Garda and see the beauty for yourself.

HISTORICAL VEHICLES ON DISPLAY SATURDAY

by Petra Lessoing
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The center of Kaiserslautern will offer a journey through the history of motor vehicles Saturday.

The fifth Kaiserslautern Classics display will be set up from 10 a.m. to midnight in all pedestrian zones, on Martinsplatz, the old Pfalztheater parking lot, around Stiftskirche, on Schillerplatz and Altenhof. Vintage vehicles, newer cars, motorcycles and utility vehicles will be presented.

Private collectors, vintage vehicle friends, motor sports clubs and associations will show off their vehicles during the event.

"We received numerous interesting registrations for vehicles such as Porsche, Rolls Royce or the historical ambulances and fire trucks," said Alexander Hess from the project office for city events. "There will be motorcycles from the 1920s, a Volkswagen Beetle from the 1940s and a Jaguar from the 1950s."

Just like last year, stores in the center and all other areas will be open until midnight. "The Classics offer a nice shopping atmosphere, which lures visitors from all over," Hess said.

For the first time, the Stifsplatz will be included in the event. After the fruit and vegetable market will close, ambulances, fire trucks, tractors and other vehicles will be displayed there. A German automobile club will offer children rides on youth carts starting at 3 p.m. The band The I Love You Sos will perform in front of the new hotel from 7 to 11 p.m.

The event will also feature an entertaining program with music from the 1950s, 1960s and 1970s. The saxophone quartet The Lazy Tongues will play classic hits from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Schillerplatz, and from 2 to 4 p.m. near Riesenbrunnen, the giant ball fountain on Riesenstrasse. Harald Krüger will entertain the audience under the motto "Solo Piano meets Rock 'n' Roll" from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. near Stiftskirche.

The Little Marching Band will perform classic jazz from 1920 to 1945 while walking throughout the whole event area. The Adlung Boogie Duo will present boogie and swing from 2 to 9 p.m. at Altenhof.

In the evening, from 7 to 11 p.m. performers will be Reindeers with rock 'n' roll on Schillerplatz, the Caroline Simpson Duo with jazz and soul near Stiftskirche and the Wild Boogie Connection with boogie all over the place.

Palatinate Route of St. James

Pilgrims hike to Otterbach Saturday, bike to Landstuhl Sunday

by Petra Lessoing
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

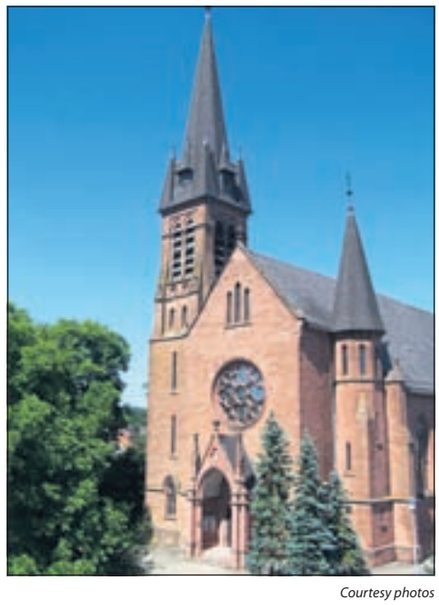
The St. James Association Rheinland-Pfalz-Saarland will sponsor a pilgrimage hike from Wartenberg-Rohrbach to Otterbach Saturday to officially inaugurate the final stage of St. James Way (Jakobsweg) leading from Worms to Metz, France. This part of the monastery route is 11 kilometers long. Interested participants will meet at 9:30 a.m. at the Protestant church in Rohrbach.

The scallop symbol shows pilgrims they are on the St. James Route.

Leisurely hiking on historical pilgrimage routes combines nature and meditation, it satisfies the individual's desire for tradition and nativeness. Members of the local St. James Association said that this might be the reason lately for many people to become pilgrims on the Route of St. James for a certain time.

One part of the wide network of historical pilgrimage routes goes through the Pfalz. There is evidence that routes did lead through the Pfalz to the relics of St. James in Santiago de Compostela. Only medieval routes can be searched for and revived.

The scallop symbol of the Route of St. James in yellow on blue is a Europe-wide directive. The scallop symbol identifies the ways leading to the main route in Spain. In the union community of Otterberg, the way leads from Otterberg through the Otter Valley, passing the Catholic church, to Erfenbach.



Courtesy photos

The Cahtolic church in Otterbach is the starting point for the pilgrimage bike tour at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

"Pilgrims of the Saturday hike will stop at the Otterberg Abbey Church and at the information boards along the route," said Patricia Bethke from the Otterbach Tourist Information office. "They will get explanations and learn about the scallop symbol in the ground in front of the Abbey Church."

Ending point of the pilgrimage hike is the Catholic church in Otterbach at around 2 p.m. Harald Westrich, the mayor of the Otterbach Union community, will welcome the guests, who can enjoy pea soup with frankfurter as well as coffee and cake.

Those who are interested can take part in a free guided tour of the church.

Starting at 5 p.m., a bus shuttle will take back the pilgrims in small groups to Wartenberg-Rohrbach.

The next stage of the monastery route will continue after the chaplain's blessing at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the Catholic church, Mariä Himmelfahrt, Kirchenstrasse 2 in Otterbach.

"This pilgrimage will be 23 kilometers long and is set up for bicyclists," said Bethke. "It will take about three hours and go from Otterbach to Rodenbach, Ramstein-Miesenbach and end at the Silbersee lake in Landstuhl."

Those who would like to obtain the new regional pilgrimage pass of the St. James Association Rheinland-Pfalz, should ask for it by visiting www.jakobusgesellschaft/Pilgern/Pilgerpass/Formular.

For more information on the Palatinate ways to St. James, visit the Tourist Pavilion in Otterbach, Konrad-Adenauer-Strasse 19, or visit www.jakobusgesellschaft.eu/regionalgruppen/nordpfalz.

Child predators: The online threat continues to grow

It's a recipe for trouble: naive teenagers, predatory adults and a medium — the Internet — that easily connects them. When a young person visits an online forum for a popular teen singer or actor, parents can be reasonably certain that online predators will be there. It is believed that more than half a million pedophiles are online every day.

Pedophiles go where children are. Before the Internet, that meant places such as amusement parks and zoos. Today, the virtual world makes it alarmingly simple for pedophiles — often pretending to be teens themselves — to make contact with young people.

Even without being someone's "friend" online, which allows access to one's social networking space, pedophiles can see a trove of teenagers' personal information — the town they live in, the high school they attend, their favorite music and TV programs — because the youngsters often post it for anyone to see. The younger generation of today wants to express themselves, and they don't realize how vulnerable it makes them.

For a pedophile, that personal information is like gold and can be used to establish a connection and gain a child's trust.

There are basically two types of pedophiles on the Internet: those who seek face-to-face meetings with children, and those who are content to anonymously collect and trade child pornography images.

Those seeking face-to-face meetings create bogus identities online, sometimes posing as teenagers. Then they troll the Internet for easy victims — youngsters with low self-esteem, problems with their parents or a shortage of money. The pedophile might find a 14-year-old girl, for example, who has posted seemingly harmless information on her space for anyone to see. The pedophile sends a message saying he goes to high school in a nearby town and likes the same music or TV shows she likes.

Then the pedophile cultivates a friendly online relationship that investigators call "grooming." It could continue for days or weeks before the pedophile begins bringing up sexual topics, asking for explicit pictures or for a personal meeting. By that time, an emotional connection has been made — and pedophiles can be master manipulators. Even if an actual meeting never takes place, it is important to note that youngsters can be victimized by such sexually explicit online contact.

Even worse than posting personal information for anyone to see is the fact that many youngsters will accept "friends" who are total strangers. About 70 percent of youngsters will accept friend requests regardless of whether they know the requester.

Nobody wants to just have five friends online, it's a popularity thing.

A relatively new trend among pedophiles is to begin grooming youngsters through online gaming forums, some of which allow two-way voice and video communication. Parents who might be vigilant about monitoring their children's Internet activity often have no idea that online video gaming platforms can pose a threat.

Parents need to talk to their children about these issues. It's no longer enough to keep computers in an open area of the house so they can be monitored. The same thing needs to be done with online gaming platforms.

Advice for Parents

Parents should talk to their children about the danger of being sexually exploited online, and they should monitor their children's Internet use along with online video gaming, an area where pedophiles are increasingly operating.

Parents should also understand that teens are not always honest about what they are doing online. Some will let their parents "friend" them on social networking sites, for example, and will then establish another space online that is hidden from their parents.

Youngsters often employ a secret Internet language to use when their parents are nearby. Examples include:

- PAW or PRW: parents are watching
- PIR: parents in room
- POS: parent over shoulder
- P911: parent emergency
- (L)MIRL: (let's) meet in real life

• ROTC at LRMC •

From classroom theory to combat injuries

by Chuck Roberts
Landstuhl Regional Medical Center
Public Affairs

For 22 ROTC cadets it was the opportunity to transcend from the theoretical study of health care at a stateside university to hands-on medicine at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center where more than 63,000 wounded warriors have been treated from Afghanistan and Iraq.

Wrapping up a month of Cadet Troop Leader Training Aug. 14, cadets reflected on hitting the ground running, treating battle injuries on patients their own age coming straight from the battlefield, and the reward of seeing the smile of a Soldier able to sit up for the first time after surgery.

Below are three cadets who shared their experience:

Elizabeth "Bea" Lauren Foley, 22, nursing student from Viterbo University in La Crosse, Wis.

Why do you want to become a health care provider?

I love the fact that I'll interact with people to improve their well-being in a personal and professional way. In the military it's an added honor to work with Soldiers and their families.

Describe what the experience has been like for you at LRMC.

As a nursing student cadet, I'm consistently questioned about what my life will be like after college. A bit unsure myself, I'd simply answer: "I'll be a nurse in an Army hospital." This internship has allowed me to live the life of an Army nurse. Through this experience, I've decided this is truly where I want to be and it has motivated me to finish strong this final year of nursing school.

What was most rewarding or meaningful thing about your time at LRMC?

The people. It was inspiring to see the blended staff of Army, Air Force, Navy and civilian workers use their individual strengths to provide optimal care to Soldiers. Even more inspiring was the determination of young Soldiers to regain strength and their desire to return to duty.

You have served where all wounded warriors from downrange are treated. Describe what that was like.

A young Soldier was very thankful when I brought him a midnight snack, a cold glass of water, and emptied his urinal. I wanted to tell him it was the least I could do in comparison to his sacrifice for our nation. Then I realized as a nurse, I reflect appreciation by providing the best possible care at all times.

Was there a special or memorable experience?

We cadets had the opportunity to join the CASF (Contingency Aeromedical Staging Facility) team for a day of inward/outward missions. It was a great honor to receive the wounded service members from downrange and to prepare them for their journey home. It was one of the most eye-opening days of my life. Seeing their faces made the consequences of war very real.

Rochelle Kathleen Lawson, 21, exercise science major from East Tennessee State University

Why do you want to become a health care provider?

The ability to train and inspire patients during their recovery phase is the greatest experience a health care provider can encounter. As a future occupational therapist, I have had the opportunity to watch patients rediscover basic activities of daily living after a severe injury. Watching patients come from the operation room to the later stages of recovery is a phenomenal experience. I have watched patients sit in a chair for the first time, stand for the first time, get dressed for the first time, and walk for the first time after surgery.

Rochelle Kathleen Lawson, 21, an exercise science major from East Tennessee State University, provides occupational therapy to a patient at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center, where the Cookeville, Tenn., native spent four weeks treating civilian patients and wounded warriors from Afghanistan and Iraq.

Describe what the experience has been like for you.

My experiences here have been incredible. The professional staff of Landstuhl Regional Medical Center is willing to pass on their knowledge to students and allow for hands-on training.

What was most rewarding or meaningful?

The most meaningful aspect of working at LRMC has been working with war heroes of this world. The knowledge I have gained will allow me to train those heroes for their next mission -- the mission of living normal lives.

You have served where all wounded warriors from downrange are treated. Describe what that was like.

Serving wounded warriors at LRMC has been a humbling experience. LRMC works not only with patients of the USA, but with patients from all NATO forces. I have had the opportunity to work with Soldiers who have recently been struck from explosives and are anxious to get back on the battlefield. The wounded Soldiers at LRMC have given me insight to what serving my country is really all about.

Was there a special or memorable experience?

Every day has been a memorable experience. From the medical knowledge, the people to interact with, and the endless opportunities to experience Germany has been a trip to cherish. Yet, the most memorable experience I have had was watching the facial expressions of a Soldier and his family while he walked for the first time after his injury.

Is there anything else you would like to add?

I am grateful to the people of LRMC for taking their time to pass on their knowledge, the Cadet Command for giving me this opportunity, and most importantly the Soldiers of NATO forces who give of themselves for the betterment of this world.

Joshua Manatt, 21, nursing student from Arkansas Tech University

Why do you want to become a health care provider?

I joined the Arkansas National Guard as a medic and from there I decided that I wanted more knowledge and skills to be able to help the most people the most effective way.

Describe what the experience has been like for you?

Taking care of the wounded warriors straight from downrange is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, especially for a college student. How many nursing students can say they did that while in school?

What was most rewarding or meaningful about your time at LRMC?

Hearing the stories from the Soldiers and helping them cope with what has happened to them, whether it be a broken arm or an amputated limb. All of us here joined for a purpose and it is easy for us to say that we will give up anything and everything for our country. Well, so many of these Soldiers have given up just that and have shown me what it means to be an American Soldier.

LRMC, with a staff of more than 3,000 Sailors, Airmen, Marines, Soldiers and civilians, provides medical care for more than 245,000 U.S. military personnel and their families within U.S. European Command. LRMC, which falls under Europe Regional Medical Command, is the only Level I Trauma Center verified by the American College of Surgeons, and joins 141 stateside hospitals with Level I ACS verification.

LRMC serves as the evacuation and treatment center for all U.S. service members and civilians injured in Afghanistan and Iraq, as well as service members from 48 coalition forces. The LRMC footprint includes the Vincenza Health Center and a total of six U.S. Army Health Clinics in Italy, Belgium and Germany.

Pikes destroy Universe 27-0

K-Town finishes 10-0 for the organization's first undefeated season

by Chad Adamczyk
Kaiserslautern Pikes

There was a lot on the line on Aug. 6. The Kaiserslautern Pikes and Frankfurt Universe both came into the Saturday tilt undefeated at 9-0, and were looking to end the day as Regionalliga Mitte Champions. The two teams were clearly the class of the league and had clinched promotion into GFL 2 next season, and it was only fitting that the Regionalliga Mitte Championship would come down to the very last game of the year.

It was clear what each team's strength was: the Universe was touted as having the best defense in the league, giving up an average of 11.2 points per game, while the Pikes clearly had the best offense in the league averaging 40.2 points per game.

It was a game of strength versus strength, which ultimately was won by the Pikes with a 27-0 rout of the Universe.

"Our defense doesn't get enough credit, they are pretty darn good and I guess you can say they played with a chip on their shoulder today," said head coach Jason Nowlin.

Kaiserslautern held Frankfurt to 82 yards of total offense and only 32 yards on the ground on 31 attempts.

"I've always thought we had the best run defense in the league. If you take a look at the stats, teams throw the ball more against us, that's because they have such a difficult time running the ball," Nowlin said.

Kaiserslautern started the route on their second drive. After a great punt return by Hazim Thomas that set up with good field position, Eric Walton scored on a 16 yard run. The drive was kept alive by a big third down catch by Mike Davis. Walton finished with 237 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

Walton was also honored after the game with the Kaiserslautern Pikes Player of the Year award, an honor that was voted on by the Pikes' fans. For the season, Walton finished with more than 2,500 yards rushing and 25 touchdowns — both believed to be team records.

The Pikes tacked on 13 points in the second quarter, highlighted by two big runs by Walton that set up a 1 yard touchdown run by Denis Rohleder, and a field goal by Holger Neumann to end the first half. The second half was all Pikes as the defense the Universe from any serious threat of scoring and the offense controlled the clock via the run game. The only scoring of the second half came off a 32 yard touchdown run by Walton. The Pikes were lead defensively by Brian Watkins who had three solo tackles and a tackle for loss, while Markus Menyfield and Myron Austin locked down the secondary for the Pikes.

The win clinched the Regionalliga Mitte Championship, the Pikes' third championship. They also finished the season undefeated, which was the first time in the team's history.

"I couldn't be happier for these guys, this is a great accomplishment, something they can look back 15 to 20 years from now and reflect about how special this was, including myself," Nowlin said.

The Pikes will now enter their offseason where they will gear up for the next challenge, GFL 2. K-Town spent two seasons in GFL 2 before being relegated back to third division this year. Nowlin said his guys will be up to the challenge.

"The league may change, but the goal remains the same," he said. "We intend to compete and challenge for the league title."

Green Lantern (PG-13) — In a universe as vast as it is mysterious, a small but powerful force has existed for centuries. The Green Lantern Corps is a brotherhood of warriors sworn to keep intergalactic order. Each Green Lantern wears a ring that grants him superpowers.

But when a new enemy called Parallax threatens to destroy the balance of power in the universe, their fate and the fate of Earth lie in the hands of their newest recruit, the first human ever selected: Hal Jordan.

Hal is a gifted and cocky test pilot, but the Green Lanterns have little respect for humans, who have never harnessed the infinite powers of the ring before.

But Hal is clearly the missing piece to the puzzle, and along with his determination and willpower, he has one thing no member of the Corps has ever had: humanity. With the encouragement of childhood sweetheart Carol Ferris, Hal quickly masters his new powers and finds the courage to overcome his fears, proving he may prove to not only be the key to defeating Parallax, but to also be the greatest Green Lantern of all.

Starring Ryan Reynolds and Blake Lively.

Final Destination 5 (R) — Death makes a killing in the next installment in the horror series that once again proves that no matter where you run, no matter where you hide, you can't cheat death.

Starring Nicholas D'Agosto and Emma Bell.

CHILD CARE

All ads & pics can be viewed @ www.class-world.eu

KA advertisers living on base/post and offering child care services are on the approved list of Family Child Care (FCC) providers. Those living off base/post offering these services in the KA are not screened by FCC. Use good judgement when choosing off base/post child care services. Qualifications should be checked and references requested before placing any child in the custody of child care providers who have not been screened.*Anyone providing more than 10 hours of care per week, on a regular basis, MUST be licensed by the FCC office. If you do not have a license and provide care, you could possibly lose your base housing privileges.**
