Walk a mile in maintainer's boots

Staff Sgt. Zachary Rodewig, 721st Aircraft Maintenance Squadron C-5 Galaxy crew chief, explains the different aspects of maintenance for a C-5 aircraft to Senior Airman Earl Shelton, 721 AMXS aerospace maintenance technician, Jan. 24 on Ramstein. All Airmen within the 721 AMXS must be qualified on C-17 Globemaster III and C-5 aircraft. On average, the 721 AMXS inspects, services and repairs 30 aircraft in a single day as part of the 521st Air Mobility Operations Wing at Ramstein.

A bitter wind chases flurries of frost across the flightline, weaving around aircraft and stinging the faces of those who stand in its way. While many Airmen are still asleep in their beds, the Airmen of the 721st Aircraft Maintenance Squadron are already awake and reporting for duty.

The first stop for Staff Sgt. Zachary Rodewig, 721 AMXS C-5 Galaxy crew chief, is to check the schedule to see how many aircraft are arriving and departing throughout the day and which ones he is assigned to inspect or repair.

"Other people can fly the planes, but it has to be able to fly before it's going anywhere," Rodewig said. "It has to have gas, tires, and it has to function properly. It's a very important task we handle on a day-to-day basis."

On average, the 521st Air Mobility Wing's 721 AMXS on Ramstein inspects, services and repairs 30 aircraft in a single day. In one weekend, they are typically responsible for more missions than all the other squadrons in the European and Pacific commands handle in a month combined. This makes them an integral part of the 521 AMOW's mission.

"I've been to a lot of different bases, and it's very difficult as far as what is expected of you at Ramstein," said Staff Sgt. Keith Varden, 721 AMXS C-17 Globemaster III crew chief. "You have to work two airframes, and we have an incredible amount of air traffic coming through. You're not going to see more work as a maintainer than you will see here."

With the sun barely peaking over the horizon, 721 AMXS Airmen step into subfreezing temperatures with their gear to begin their first job of the day. Rodewig's first scheduled aircraft isn't until later in the morning, so he comes along to lend a hand.

The aircraft is a C-17 that needs a panel under one of the wings to be replaced. Despite a few challenges, such as damaged equipment and the awkward shape of the panel, they are able to bring it up to its spot and set it in place. Light snow flurries fall around them as they toil away.

"It doesn't matter if it's raining or snowing, someone has to be out there," Rodewig said. "Even if it's not a hard task to do, it's a thousand times more difficult and a strain on your body when you're in the rain or it's below freezing."

This morning it is a panel that needs to be replaced, but any given day can show the 721 AMXS Airmen repairing electrical work, hydraulics, fuel cells, changing tires and more for both C-5 and C-17 aircraft.

"It takes a lot of personal integrity to make sure you're doing everything the way you're supposed to," Varden said. "When there's so much work the temptation is there to cut corners so you can be done in a timely manner. Everybody stresses more than anything to take the time to do what you need to do. If the plane goes late, the plane goes late. It's difficult sometimes to balance an effective work rate to get all the work done and be safe."

Rodewig moves on to another C-17 to help those Airmen inspect it. He checks that all the lights work and the expiration dates for equipment, makes sure there isn't anything hanging or broken inside and picks up trash.

With so much to inspect and possibly repair for each aircraft, the mobility maintainers try to help one another clear aircraft for a faster departure.

"We try to group up like a mass of white blood cells and attack the first plane that comes down so we can get the inspections, maintenance and servicing all done effectively," Varden said. "If time allows, when the next plane comes down, the group moves on to the next one and then the next

Family Advocacy steers families to success

Participants of the "7 Habits of Successful Families" class discuss family habits Jan. 25 on Ramstein. The 86th Medical Operations Squadron Family Advocacy Program hosted the class to help military service members better develop and understand the values, views and habits of themselves and their families.

As they grow in age and experience, families will hit certain challenges along the way to building a trusting relationship with each other.

The "7 Habits of Successful Families" provides tools to decrease stress, increase family bonds and build a strong family base to help families when they are faced with life's challenges.

The 86th Medical Operations Squadron Family Advocacy Program hosted the 7 Habits of Successful Families class to help military service members better develop and understand the values, views and habits of themselves and their families Jan. 25 on Ramstein.

Topics discussed during the course included being proactive, maintaining positive and frequent communication, and putting family first.

"We realize that each family is unique," said Melissa Garcia, 86 MDOS Family Advocacy Program outreach manager. "We challenge participants to take the information from our classes and to adapt and apply what works best with their family values."

Participants of the 7 Habits of Successful Families received the guidebook, which is based on the works of Stephen R. Covey and his book "The 7 Habits of Highly Effective Families."

"The 7 Habits of Successful Families workshop was an outstanding class," said Eleanor Field, U.S. Air Forces in Europe program manager. "As a military spouse working full time, it is very important for me to focus on my family when I am home. This workshop gives my family the opportunity to develop a stronger bond and emphasized the importance of focusing on family, relationships and utilizing the time we have together."

The two-hour class is open to any military service members and ID cardholders. The next course is scheduled for May 19.

A&FRC hosts Heartlink for new Air Force spouses

by Airman 1st Class D. Blake Browning
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Life can be overwhelming for a new military spouse. What is an LES? How do I get help when I need it? What do I wear to an Air Force Ball?

Answers to these questions and more will be provided at an event for military spouses from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Feb. 10 on Ramstein in Bldg. 2120.

Funded by the Air Force Aid Society and hosted by the Airman and Family Readiness Center, the Heartlink program is a series of classes held quarterly for spouses new to the 86th Airlift Wing or the Air Force lifestyle.

"The Heartlink program is basically Air Force 101 for military spouses," said Ruthy Srun, 86th Force Support Squadron A&FRC community readiness consultant. "It's going to cover Ramstein's mission, Air Force traditions and all the acronyms that the spouses probably don't understand and still hear day to day."

The names of leadership and a litany of acronyms aren't the only things on the agenda. Spouses will also learn about many of the services available to them on base, amongst other useful information.

"Heartlink covers military personnel flight, finance, Leave and Earnings Statements, Air Force protocol and things like that," Srun said. "In addition, they'll hear from helping agencies from the installation like the chapel, the Military and Family Life Consultants and the A&FRC. It really is a combination of all of the things a military spouse would find useful. Some of the information is a little bit more obscure, something they don't hear about everyday like how to read an LES."

The A&FRC wants to reach as many as they can with this valuable information, Srun said.

"We're definitely trying to increase participation in the program because it is really good information," Srun said. "We want as many spouses as possible to attend the event."

Although there is a lot of beneficial information offered at the meeting, the facilitators of Heartlink try to keep the briefings light-hearted and away from the feel of traditional briefings.

"We always have door prizes, but we tend to kind of go all out in February even more so than usual," Srun said. "Everybody that attends the class will leave with something special."

Aside from being informational, Heartlink also offers spouses the opportunity to network and mingle with other spouses who may be in similar situations as them.

"When I was a new military spouse, it would've been helpful to me," Srun said. "It would've been helpful to know about the A&FRC. It would've been helpful to know about first sergeants and what they do and the different helping agencies like the chapel and MFLC. It would've been nice to know what an LES was, how my spouse got paid and where the money came from. It would've been nice to know what to wear to an Air Force ball, but more than anything, it would have been nice to get to know other military spouses who were kind of in the same place that I was."

To register for the event, Airmen or spouses may call the A&FRC at 480-5100 or 06371-47-5100. Reservations for the next class are required by today, considering lunch will be provided.

Contracting representatives exchange ideas

Civilian and military defense contracting representatives gathered to discuss issues surrounding the U.S. contracting community in Europe Jan. 24 on Ramstein.

The Air Force Installation Contracting Agency in Europe organized the meeting to allow representatives to exchange ideas for smarter, faster and more efficient ways to work. Featured speakers emphasized the need for contracting units from all branches of the U.S. military to work together for optimum mission accomplishment.

"Today's event is about sharing information," said Capt. Marco Campos, AFICA operations staff officer. "What we're trying to do is consolidate information, combine efforts and hold joint initiatives so we can leverage our current funds for other procurements.

Military and civilian defense contracting representatives attend a meeting to discuss ways to procure supplies more efficiently Jan. 24 on Ramstein. The meeting emphasized the importance of cooperation between contracting agencies from all branches of the U.S. military.

"Now that we are sharing information, we have better market research," Campos added.

Contracting agencies represented included the Defense Finance and Accounting Service, Defense Logistics Agency, Defense Acquisition University, Defense Information Technology Contracting Organization, and Air Force, Army and Navy contracting units.

Participants discussed how to efficiently acquire supplies and material, the state of the enlisted contracting force, the warranting process and mission briefs of various contracting units.

"The big item is savings and, furthermore, using those savings to buy more weapons systems and other merchandise for military readiness," Campos said. "With a smaller budget, this is necessary, and we are confident that this will take us where we need to be so our military can be ready.

"We're providing guidance for the next generation of the contracting workforce. We're leaning towards sharing more information and working in a more joint environment," Campos added.

With the myriad of talking points and subjects discussed throughout the meeting, two principles summed them up: saving taxpayer dollars and making the U.S. military as efficient as possible.

one and so on."

The sun has refused to show its face from behind the clouds all day, oblivious to the Airmen running to and from below as they race to complete their checks and repairs. A wind chill peaking at 14 degrees follows them everywhere they go, freezing noses, ears and fingers.

"I like working under pressure," Rodewig said. "When it's go time, that's all I'm focused on. I'm out here working fast, effectively and safely; I get in the zone."

Before Rodewig can complete the inspection on the C-17, he is called to catch an incoming C-5, his next assignment for the day. He and other Airmen marshal the plane to its spot, chock the wheels, plug it into a generator, check tire pressure, refill oil and refuel the aircraft.

With every breath the Airmen take, vapor rises from their mouths and drifts into the frosted air as they move around the C-5, ensuring everything is as it should be.

"I didn't really think about the people who work on an aircraft until I started working on them, and you realize you better put a lot of trust in the people who do," Rodewig said. "Sometimes when you do heavy maintenance on an aircraft, people are relying on you to make sure you do it right. I take a lot of pride in that."

Maintainers at Ramstein have to have an in-depth knowledge of both C-5 and C-17 aircraft and be able to switch gears between working on one and then the other as they move through their shift.

"A lot of the career fields within maintenance require mechanical aptitude, patience and intuition to figure out how systems operate and integrate with each other," Varden said. "This is aerospace maintenance. It's not just Jiffy Lube. Though, we do have a relaxed environment that we can joke around, so when people are around us they tend to think we're just a bunch of grease monkeys."

The darkening sky hangs above Rodewig as he makes his way back to his squadron. It has been a so-called slow day for the 721 AMXS with only 15 inbound and outbound aircraft requiring their expertise.

After returning his gear and shedding some protective layers, Rodewig uses the remaining time of his shift to catch up on his administration work, something he doesn't always have the opportunity to do.

Whether it's repairing, inspecting or servicing C-5 or C-17 aircraft, the 721 AMXS Airmen toil day in and day out to keep Ramstein and anyone who passes through here safe in the sky.

After it was in place, 721 AMXS Airmen chocked the wheels, plugged it into a generator, checked tire pressure, refilled oil and refueled the aircraft. AADD saves lives, careers in KMC

Airman 1st Class
Joshua Magbanua
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Airmen and their families at Ramstein brag about the many perks of being stationed here: the opportunities to travel, the vibrant culture, the world-famous castles and, of course, the alcohol.

The beer, served in towering glasses with the foamy head spilling over, is rumored to be cheaper than water in some locations.

Thus, the struggle against the temptation of drinking on a night you're supposed to be driving is real. Even having designated drivers may not be a fool-proof plan for a weekend of partying.

This is why volunteers with Airmen Against Drunk Driving stand ready to take military members home in case the designated driver leaves the party early or is otherwise unable to drive.

Airmen Against Drunk Driving is a program available on many Air Force installations, including Ramstein. The program not only serves Airmen but all members of the U.S. military.

"Sometimes your plans don't always make it through the night," said Tech. Sgt. Joseph Tidwell, 603rd Air Communications Squadron quality assurance evaluator and AADD president at Ramstein. "Some people (the designated driver) may end up leaving, or they may have had a drink and are not prepared to drive. AADD is a program designed to take care of those individuals."

Tidwell clarified that AADD is not meant to be a primary plan for those who have been drinking, rather as a safety net for those whose plans fall through.

He stressed the importance of AADD, saying those who use the program's services save themselves from the dire consequences of drinking and driving.

"We're trying to eliminate DUIs, DWIs — those types of incidences," Tidwell said. "Obviously the program is not perfect, and we can't eliminate all of them, but the goal is zero."

The effects of a DUI to an Airman's career are devastating.

Consequences can include, but are not limited to, reduction in rank, forfeiture of pay and allowances, dishonorable discharge and imprisonment.

Tech. Sgt. William Komula, 603rd Air Operations Center NCO in charge of maintenance operations and AADD treasurer, added that people who drink and drive not only put themselves at risk but others as well.

"Lots of people forget it's all the others around who are affected as well — innocent people who might be walking down the street and get hit by a drunk driver." Komula explained. "So we want to do our best to help mitigate that, to help provide alternative options to make smart choices, look out for each other and practice our core values."

Komula recalled an experience he had at his first duty station when he and his friends went out to enjoy the weekend and suddenly found themselves in a predicament. A miscommunication had occurred. The person who was supposed to be the designated driver thought that another person was going to drive and so ended up drinking as well.

Thankfully, Komula's unit had a similar program to AADD, and someone was able to bring them home.

"None of us made any bad choices that night. I thought, 'Oh, this is awesome,'" Komula said. "Had we been knuckleheads and made the wrong choice, we all know what happens if we go down that road."

This event was one of the experiences Komula pointed to as his inspiration for joining AADD and is one of the many success stories that drive the program's volunteers to move forward with their mission of saving lives and careers.

A crumpled Airman Battle Uniform cap lies on a table next to a set of keys, beer bottle and beer mug Jan. 20 on Ramstein. The Airman Against Drunk Driving program is available at many Air Force bases and aims to prevent cases of DUI among Airmen.

Col. Rodney Honeycutt, commander, and Command Sgt. Maj. Mark Morgan, command sergeant major, both from the 405th AFSB, were invited in order to meet and visit with the local citizens and dignitaries.

The 405th AFSB, other military partners and the citizens of Duelmen will be holding a ribbon-cutting ceremony celebrating the opening of the Army Prepositioned Stocks 2-Duelmen, which is scheduled for May 2017.

The APS is a program that assists the U.S. Army as it continues to maximize its presence in Europe in order to deter and defend Europe against any type of foreign aggression. In addition, these APS sites, which store ammunition and equipment, assist in ensuring the United States' commitment to the NATO alliance.

APS2-Duelmen is the second site to open in Europe. The first site, located in Eygelshoven, Netherlands, opened in December.

Tax season can be hassle-free thanks to U.S. Army tax centers providing free, electronic preparation and filing for individuals eligible for legal assistance in the KMC beginning Monday.

U.S. Army tax centers provide services on a first-come, first-served walk-in basis for simple federal and state tax returns until Feb. 20, said Capt. Thomas Edmonds, Judge Advocate legal assistance attorney, with the Kleber Kaserne Law Center.

"Our grand opening is Feb. 6, and we encourage all single Soldiers to walk in for tax preparation and filing services. After Feb. 20, we will also offer appointments to customers with complex tax returns that require more time to organize and prepare," Edmonds said. "Individuals with complicated returns should bring all their tax-related documents to ensure forms are prepared and filed quickly and accurately. Complicated may include, but are not limited to, rental real estate income, self-employment income and foreign income."

There are three Army tax center locations offering free services and refund direct deposits to KMC customers.

Kleber Tax Center is located in Bldg. 3210, room 101. Hours of operation during the tax season are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and closed on U.S. federal holidays. For more information, call 483-7724 or 0631-411-7724.

Landstuhl Tax Center is located in Bldg. 3368 on the Landstuhl heliport installation on L470, approximately 2 kilometers west of Wilson Barracks. Hours of operation during the tax season are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and closed on U.S. federal holidays. For more information, call 486-6334 or 06371-86-6334.

Baumholder Tax Center is located in Bldg. 8222. The center will begin providing service from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and closed on U.S. federal holidays. For more information, call 485-1040 or 0678-36-1040.

Customers should bring all related 2016 income documents — W-2s or 1099s, bank deposit information — account and routing numbers, birthdates, tax identification numbers or social security numbers for all family members. Homeowners should bring mortgage interest statements — Form 1098, real estate tax statements and mortgage insurance statements. Landlords should bring rental receipt information — 1099-MISC, property management statements of receipts and expenses, mortgage interest statement — Form 1098, hazard insurance information, prior year returns — required for depreciation purposes, and completed draft Schedule E available at www.irs.gov.

People who are self employed should bring mortgage interest statements — Form 1098, Certificate of Coverage — SSA-4121-W-Ger, revenue and expense information — including any government subsidies, and completed draft Schedule C available at www.irs.gov.

Team defense, ball movement propel JV Lady Raiders hoops to 4-0

The Kaiserslautern High School Girls' Junior Varsity basketball team successfully defended its unblemished record against the Wiesbaden Lady Warriors Jan. 20 at Kaiserslautern High School. The victory earned them their fourth straight win with a score of 20-14 and improving to 4-0 on the season.

Freshman guard Jaelyn Salton led the charge, but stout team defense and crisp passing between the Lady Raiders were the keys to Kaiserslautern remaining undefeated.

Faced with a height disadvantage, the Lady Raiders countered with an impenetrable zone defense, repelling Wiesbaden players from the rim and forcing the Lady Warriors to attempt tougher, long-range shots. Quick to help each other on defense, the Lady Raiders held Wiesbaden to just six field goals all night. Wiesbaden guard Reagan Jones made the Lady Warriors' only three-point shot.

On the offensive side, the Lady Raiders displayed outstanding team chemistry as they put on a passing clinic. In the beginning of the second half, Salton dribbled the inbound pass across half court and tossed the ball to freshman guard-forward Kate Holquist in the left wing. Recognizing that Salton continued to cut to the basket, Holquist passed up an open shot and dished the ball right back to Salton, who finished the give-and-go play with an easy layup.

It was the unselfish plays like this that allowed Kaiserslautern to open up the lead and seal the deal in the fourth quarter. With 2 minutes and 12 seconds left to play, Salton stole the ball and immediately dribbled towards the basket with only one Wiesbaden defender to beat and a trailing Holquist to assist. Salton attacked the rim, forcing the defender to follow her. At the last second, Salton delivered a swift bounce pass to Holquist, who laid the ball in to score two of her six points of the night.

Though Salton put forth an outstanding individual effort, scoring a game-high 10 points, she praised her coaches and teammates after the game.

"For the most part (our defense) worked well," Salton said. "When we do as the coaches say, it's spot on."

Salton also attributes the results on the court to the relationship she shares with her teammates.

Despite the come-and-go nature that student athletes experience as members of the KMC, Salton has enjoyed the luxury of playing with some of the same teammates for two to three years, and some of them traveled together to Austria last year to play in an international tournament.

"We bond really well," Salton stated simply.

Salton and the Lady Raiders will test their bond today as they take a road trip to Vilseck High School to face the Lady Falcons. Tip-off is at 4 p.m. at the Vilseck High School gym.

USAFE-AFAFRICA welcomes new command chief

by Tech. Sgt. Ryan Crane
U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Air Forces Africa Public Affairs

Chief Master Sgt. Phillip L. Easton was selected as the new U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Air Forces Africa command chief master sergeant.

As the command chief, Easton is the senior enlisted advisor to the commander on all matters affecting operations, training and readiness, health, morale and welfare, discipline and effective use of more than 32,000 total force personnel assigned to eight wings and 88 geographically separated units responsible for operations across 104 countries.

"It's definitely an honor, and I feel truly blessed to be selected as the next USAFE-AFAFRICA command chief," said Chief Master Sgt. Phillip L. Easton. "I look forward to continuing to serve the amazing men and women of this great command."

Previously, Easton was the command chief master sergeant of the 3rd Air Force and 17th Expeditionary Air Force at Ramstein.

Easton entered the Air Force in August 1990. He has served in leadership roles at the squadron, group, wing and numbered Air Force. He was also a military training instructor for five years and the commandant of the Erwin Professional Military Education Center.

Easton assumed his new duties Jan. 26. He succeeds Chief Master Sgt. Kaleth Wright, who was selected to serve as the 18th chief master sergeant of the Air Force.

AF responds to hiring freeze

Courtesy of Secretary of the Air Force Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — The Air Force is working with the Defense Department to provide additional guidance on the federal civilian hiring freeze implemented Jan. 23.

According to the official memorandum, the hiring freeze applies to all executive departments and agencies regardless of the sources of their operational and programmatic funding, excepting military personnel. Exemptions may be permitted to meet the national security mission and public safety responsibilities or to prevent essential services from interruption. During this freeze, contracting outside the government is not permitted.

The appointment of federal employees who began work on or before Jan. 23 will not be affected and those with existing "firm" offers with effective dates on or before Feb. 22 may proceed. The Air Force Personnel Center will provide individual notices to those directly affected by this freeze. This will include those individuals who received job offers prior to Jan. 22 with a confirmed start date after Feb. 22, or in some cases, no start date.

The official memorandum calls for the implementation of a long-term plan to reduce the size of the federal civilian workforce through attrition. This plan is to be submitted within 90 days by the Office of Management and Budget in coordination with the Office of Personnel Management.

"Our civilian force is absolutely critical to our readiness and mission, we are taking every step to ensure we get this right," said Lt. Gen. Gina M. Grosso, the deputy chief of staff for Air Force manpower, personnel and services. "Our team has been working closely with OSD to draft clear Air Force guidance on implementation and hiring freeze exemptions. As of today, we have not received the final DOD guidance memorandum, which we believe will contain some relief in critical mission areas. Once the DOD guidance is released, we will provide the field with detailed guidance on exemption processing to ensure the most swift and effective method to request needed relief."

The civilian workforce makes up 26 percent of the total Air Force and is currently staffed at 96 percent with more than 179,000 positions filled. Given historical attrition of 1,300 personnel per month, the civilian workforce could shrink by 3 percent over the next four months, leaving more than 13,000 vacant positions.

"The impact of this freeze will likely be felt over time as personnel retire and separate from the Air Force," she continued. "Because of the vital role civilians perform, we will work to provide as much information as possible, as quickly as possible with regard to the freeze."

TODAY: Spinach & Turkey Omelette with Romaine lettuce

Ingredients (for 4 people)

- A bit more than a ½ pound spinach – frozen, whole leaf
- 2-3 small heads of Romaine lettuce, washed leaf by leaf and chopped into 1 inch piece if desired
- 2 tablespoons of white wine vinegar
- 1 teaspoon mustard - medium hot
- Salt and ground white pepper to taste
- 4 tablespoons oil
- 6 eggs
- 4 tablespoons milk
- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
- 4 Tablespoons butter
- Sliced turkey from the deli section - 4-8 slices
- ½ cup chopped fresh parsley
- 4 tablespoons of sour cream

Preparation

Let spinach come to room temperature. Wash and dry lettuce. Whisk oil with mustard, drip by drip. If the mustard and oil don't coagulate well together, add a bit of warm water. Season it with salt and ground white pepper. Add white wine vinegar.

Beat milk, eggs, ground white pepper, salt and nutmeg together.

Press the spinach to remove all the liquid.

Use half of the butter in a pan. Add spinach and simmer for 2 minutes. Season to taste. Add garlic if you like the flavor. Remove and put in oven to keep warm.

Put the remaining butter in the pan. Add egg and milk mixture on medium heat. The eggs should not get brown. Put a lid on the pan to achieve the appropriate texture. This should look like a pancake made with just milk and eggs. Flip the pancake to cook the top side. Cook 2-3 minutes on each side. Add turkey breast slices, spinach and sour cream. Put the lid back on and let it cook for 2 more minutes at medium heat. Fold the omelette in half. Divide into four portions. Plate with chopped lettuce and French mustard dressing. This is a low carb recipe for all of those sticking to their New Year's resolutions!!! Look for more low carb meals in the weeks to follow!

Dogs, medics take to air

Maj. Chris N. Angeles
67th Forward Surgical Team

Sgt. Chad F. Salinero, a flight medic with C Company, 1-214th General Support Aviation Battalion, pets military working dog Anouska, a patrol explosive detector dog, during her first helicopter ride as she is held by Sgt. Joseph A. Tucci, a MWD handler with the 100th Military Working Dog Detachment, Jan. 10.

GRAFENWOEHR, Germany — Medical personnel, military working dogs and handlers worked together to train on how to care for injured MWDs and injured Soldiers and conduct aeromedical evacuation for both during an exercise Jan. 9 to 12 in Grafenwoehr Training Area.

Soldiers from a variety of KMC units including the 67th Forward Surgical Team, 100th Military Working Dog Detachment, 64th Medical Detachment Veterinary Service Support, medics from 3rd Squadron, 2nd Cavalry Regiment and aeromedical evacuation crews from C Company, 1-214th General Support Aviation Battalion participated in the field training exercise.

"The vision for this FTX was for the 67th FST to conduct full spectrum-of-care training with any patient, human or canine in a winter environment to enhance the team's readiness," said Maj. Linda C. Benavides, general surgeon and FST team chief. "Having vet support, MWDs and handlers, field medics, and MEDEVAC personnel and helicopters made this training operationally relevant and was an amazing experience for all participants."

In December the FST trained with the veterinary staff of Dog Center Europe at Pulaski Barracks. To build upon that training the FTX included classes by Maj. Christopher C. Corrie, veterinarian, and Sgt. Holly J. Schmidt, animal care specialist, both assigned to 64th MDVSS. Soldiers from the 67th FST, 3-2 Cav. Reg., and C 1-214th GSAB, along with a Soldier from the German army, learned about basic veterinary assessment, intravenous catheter placement and bandaging. They were then able to put these skills to use on actual MWDs, handled by Sgt. Joseph A. Tucci and Pvt. Molly B. Reichert, both MWD handlers with the 100th MWD.

For Corrie, training with the FST was an example of how two separate units with separate missions can enhance each other's ability to provide patient care.

"The FST and veterinary detachments meld so effortlessly and have, in my experience, been significant force multipliers for each other downrange, especially in small operating bases," Corrie said. "Any opportunities to train like this in an FTX is a win-win situation, and we look forward to more events like this in the future."

Following the veterinary training, licensed practical nurses of the 67th FST taught classes on medications common to both air and ground emergency medicine, a class that flight medics found beneficial.

"I thought it was a good review for us," said Staff Sgt. Jeremy M. Wicklin, flight medic, C Co. 1-214th GSAB. "We carry all the drugs we talked about, and knowing which one I want to give and why is extremely important. They're there, and we need to understand them."

Following the training on the ground, MEDEVAC helicopters from C 1-214th GSAB arrived and Sgt. Alejandro Arredondo, a flight medic, instructed the group on MEDEVAC equipment as well as safe approach to a helicopter. All of the Soldiers then practiced approaching the aircraft as the rotors spun overhead.

"Safety is the main thing," said Arredondo. "Having people going through and actually doing it is extremely important."

Although the FST frequently conducts training on care-of-combat casualties, the participation of a MEDEVAC unit was a new experience unit members found valuable.

"Having the helicopter here and having MEDEVAC here to walk us through safely approaching and loading patients was extremely helpful," said Sgt. Nicholas P. Bankston, operating room technician, 67th FST.

For Sgt. 1st Class David A. Thompson, detachment sergeant, 67th FST, having the MEDEVAC participating in training added to the realism and value of the training, particularly during the scenario training on the final day.

"To actually call up a nine-line was a new thing," Thompson said. "We have trained on it before, but there is no substitute for actually calling it in to a MEDEVAC and having everything happen in real time."

All the steps involved in aeromedical evacuation were practiced throughout the exercise. After preparing patients for evac, four-person litter teams loaded the patients into the aircraft, who were then taken on a short flight above Grafenwoehr Training Area.

"The patient handoff for a critical care transport is a perishable skill, so we jump at every opportunity to train perfecting the skill," said Sgt. Chad F. Salinero, flight medic, C 1-214th GSAB. "The handoff takes time, attention to detail and direct questions from the surgical team to ensure proper patient care in flight."

For many of the Soldiers, this was their first time riding in a helicopter. However, Reichert, as a MWD handler, was concerned that this was also MWD Anouska's first helicopter ride.

"At first I was worried because I didn't know what was going to happen, but as soon as we got up in the air, she was so calm that I wasn't even worried," said Reichert.

Over the course of the FTX, the Soldiers of the 64th MDVSS, 3-2 CR and 1-214th GSAB, and the 67th FST worked hand in hand to increase the readiness of each of their respective units. For German soldier Master Sgt. Sandra Kuerzinger, a physician assistant student temporarily assigned to the MEDEVAC, it was a brand new experience training with the FST.

"It was great working with the FST," Kuerzinger said. "I was not familiar with an FST, so I learned a lot. In Afghanistan we had American surgeons at our role II facility, but this is my first exposure to an all-American surgical team, and I hope we can work together again in the future."

Spc Maphiri, Sgt Hodge win 7th MSC Best Warrior competition

Sgt. 1st Class
Matthew Chlosta
7th Mission Support Command Public Affairs

Spc. Baholo Maphiri from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 457th Civil Affairs Battalion, 7th Mission Support Command, treats a simulated casualty during the 7th MSC enlisted Best Warrior competition Jan. 23.

The Army Reserve's 7th Mission Support Command on Daenner Kaserne held its 2017 Best Warrior competition over three days in January.

Spc. Baholo Maphiri from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 457th Civil Affairs Battalion, won the Best Warrior Competition enlisted Soldier category, while Sgt. Erin Hodge, from the office of the surgeon, won the non-commissioned officer BWC title in a close contest with Sgt. Peter Bickelhaupt, from HHC, 361st Civil Affairs Brigade, Jan. 22 through 24.

The events covered many different training scenarios and environments, including a chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear event; providing first aid to a casualty; a 10K ruck march; an Army Physical Fitness Test; and facing questions from a sergeants major board after a uniform inspection in ASUs with marching and facing movements.

"The toughest event was the APFT because of the cold," Bickelhaupt said.

It was so frigid during the APFT run that icicles formed on Hodge's eyelashes and her hair.

"The competitors gave one-hundred percent and really put their heart into it," Master Sgt. Richard Silva, senior command retention NCOIC and BWC director said. "They were out there running an APFT in (minus) 14 (degrees) Celsius without any complaints because that's what warriors do."

They epitomized the Warrior Ethos and are a testament to the profession of arms, Silva added.

"The ruck march was my favorite," Bickelhaupt said. "It was really fun."

The Soldiers also had to write an essay about the importance of a college education to enlisted Soldiers and pass a timed written exam on basic Army knowledge, history, doctrine and the chain of command.

The competition between the competitors was intense but at the same time they worked together as a team and looked to each other for extra motivation in the below freezing temperatures.

"We bonded," Bickelhaupt added. "It was a team building competition."

This was Bickelhaupt's second best warrior competition, but first with the Army Reserve. He last participated in a BWC when he was active-duty Army stationed with 16th Sustainment Brigade at Baumholder before he joined the 7th MSC.

"It didn't feel like a competition," Hodge said. "We shared stories with each other. The ruck march (was my biggest) challenge. The CBRN lane was easiest for me because we did a lot (of CBRN training) at my last unit."

This was Hodge's first BWC.

"It's fun, it's awesome," Maphiri said. "Its great training."

The CBRN training lane was the first time Maphiri had seen the new Mission Oriented Protective Posture suit.

"This was my most challenging event," Maphiri said.

They had to don a full MOPP suit in eight minutes, Maphiri added.

"Weapons assembly was my strongest event so far and anything medical," Maphiri said.

Maphiri said he did a lot of physical fitness training and biking in preparation for this competition.

Even though the competitors bonded during the competition, each entrant also had an individual NCO sponsor. Each coach played a key role in the competitor's preparation and execution as advisor, mentor and de facto teammate.

Hodge's sponsor, Sgt. 1st Class Juan Perez, the OSURG NCOIC, said, "It is a little nerve racking, because you want to help them more than you're allowed to."

This was Perez's first time as a sponsor.

"I try to put myself in her shoes," Perez said about Hodge. "She has taken the initiative to a lot on her own. I just gave her a few spot quizzes on basic Soldiering."

Maphiri and Hodge are now scheduled to compete as the 7th MSC enlisted Soldier and NCO competitors in the upcoming 21st TSC and U.S. Army Reserve Command's BWCs.

Voelklinger Huette World Heritage Site offers exciting day trip

Voelklinger Huette World Heritage Site is the only fully preserved ironworks of industrial culture. After the closure of the pig iron production in 1986, Voelklingen Ironworks was declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO in 1994. The beginnings of Voelklingen Ironworks date back to 1873. In 1883, the first blast furnace went into operation. The industrial monument will be preserved for future generations. The World Heritage Site shows outstanding exhibitions on an international level.

The sloping elevator for ore and the sintering plant count as pioneering achievements of Voelklingen Ironworks. The raw materials were transported in a suspension track wagon by the elevator to the charging platform at 32 meters. The charging platform links the six blast furnaces of the ironworks. Sintering technology offers the opportunity to recycle waste products from smelting processes — i.e. ore dust and blast furnace flue dust. Voelklingen is one of the most modern sintering plants in Europe and one of the biggest at the time.

A visit to Voelklinger Huette begins with a multimedia introduction that shows the former day-to-day work. The greatest adventure is to go up to the viewing platform at the blast furnace 45 meters high. From here you have a fascinating view over the industrial landscape of the World Heritage Site.

Where once there were chimneys smoking and a deafening noise was part of everyday work is now a place of concerts and large-scale exhibitions. Industry and culture are combined on an area of more than 600,000 square meters to a must-see attraction for anyone seeking the exceptional.

Apart from the changing exhibitions, the ScienceCenter Ferrodrom® and the Paradise can also be visited. The ScienceCenter Ferrodrom® is a world of experiences on the subjects of iron and steel that links the histories of iron and Voelklinger Ironworks. The process of extracting the iron can easily be understood by kids and adults at over 100 experimental and experience stations.

"The Paradise" is the wild landscape garden at Voelklinger Huette. The area between the plant and River Saar has remained untrod behind an impregnable wall for more than 25 years. Just as in paradise, animals and plants could thrive undisturbed in the shadow of the blast furnace group. With the help of landscape architect Duchess Catherine von Bernadotte, a landscape garden of 33,000 square meters has been created, which stages the dialogue between industrial culture and nature in twelve garden areas.

At one time, vast quantities of ore were stored in the ore shed. Nowadays the ore shed offers a place for exhibitions and cultural events. Voelklinger Huette applies special emphasis on pop culture and pop art. They brought the value of everyday culture to the attention of the general public. Voelklingen Ironworks wouldn't have been perceived as a World Cultural Heritage Site by UNESCO without the basic change of our culture through pop art. That's why the site shows important pop art exhibitions of artists like Duane Hanson, Mel Ramos or Allen Jones, located in the ore shed.

The rusty brown walls full of dust and the silos give the shed a rough charm. This makes it a place for extraordinary exhibitions that consciously use industrial culture for its presentation.

The blower hall is the place for the largest exhibitions in the ironworks. These exhibitions often become a strong public attraction. The blower hall spectacularly presents the culture of the Incas, the French cult comic "Asterix" or "Buddha". With its exhibition area of more than 6,000 square meters, the blower hall was also the place for the most successful exhibition in the history of Saarland: "The Celts — Druids. Princes. Warriors." with almost 200.000 visitors.

Opening hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission fee is €15. Children, youth under 18, and students up to 27-years-old with students' ID card are admitted free.

February is American Heart Month

by Maj. Asia L. Roberson
86th Medical Group

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, cardiovascular disease, which includes heart disease, hypertension and stroke, is the leading cause of death for both men and women in the United States. The American Heart and Stroke Association states cardiovascular disease is the leading global cause of death, accounting for 17.3 million deaths per year, a number that is expected to grow to more than 23.6 million by 2030. Approximately 380 people are affected by some form of cardiovascular disease in our Ramstein community.

Some risk factors for CVD include: hypertension, high blood cholesterol, diabetes and prediabetes, smoking, being overweight or obese, being physically inactive, having a family history of early heart disease, having a history of preeclampsia during pregnancy, unhealthy diet and age — 55 or older for women.

Although some risk factors, such as age and family history, can't be changed, you can make healthy changes to lower your risk of developing cardiovascular disease. Controlling and preventing risk factors are also important for people who already have cardiovascular disease.

Here are some things you can do to lower your risk:

• Watch your weight.

• Quit smoking and stay away from secondhand smoke.

• Control your cholesterol and blood pressure.

• If you drink alcohol, drink only in moderation.

• Get active and eat healthy.

For more information, contact the 86 MDG Medical Management Team at 479-2236.
