Secretary of Defense Robert Gates delivered the commencement address to more than 120 Kaiserslautern High School graduates here June 11.

He came by invitation of the students to honor the many graduates who are also military dependents.

"At the beginning of the year, the senior class and student government sent out probably 20 letters to various politicians, celebrities, former presidents and to President Obama inviting them to be our commencement speaker," said Karly Pecua, student body government president. "When Secretary Gates accepted our invitation, we were really taken by surprise."

When speaking to the soon-to-be graduates, Secretary Gates commented on the extraordinary life of a military dependent.

"The challenges associated with being a child of the military in a foreign (country) are considerable. This is a remarkable bunch," he said.

Secretary Gates spoke about a variety

MANNHEIM, Germany — The griffin mascot and the gold and buff colors of the 28th Transportation Battalion have long been a common fixture in Germany as the unit's trucks have logged thousands of miles across the country's roads and autobahns. Now, after 74 years of service, the 28th Trans. Bn. is closing a chapter in its history and saying its final farewell to Germany.

The 28th Trans. Bn. cased its colors June 4 at an inactivation ceremony here in front of the battalion headquarters on Coleman Barracks. A legacy of dedication and service to the Soldiers of Europe and their communities has come to an end.

Reaching Europe in 1944 between the shores of Toulousse and Nice, France, the battalion has called Mannheim its home for 57 of the 66 years it has been in Europe. In fact, much of the battalion's history is intertwined with Germany's history.

The crowd of guests who gathered to send off this historic battalion included Maj. Gen. Patricia McQuistion, 21st Theater Sustainment Command commanding general, Col. Thomas Evans and Command Sgt. Maj. Brenda Curfman, commander and command sergeant major of the 18th Military

Thank you, Col. Rupp for a job well done

by Brig. Gen. Mark Dillon
86th Airlift Wing commander

Col. William Rupp relinquishes command of the 86th Maintenance Group Thursday with Brig. Gen. Mark Dillon in Ramstein's Hangar 1.

This week, Col. Bill Rupp relinquished command of the 86th Maintenance Group to Col. Scott Fike. I'd like to say a special thanks to Colonel Rupp by highlighting the great work he and the men and women of the 86th MXG have accomplished these past two years.

Colonel Rupp and his impressive team of 750 Airmen have maintained a total of 27 C-130s, C-21s, C-20s and C-40 aircraft. These combat airlift and distinguished visitor aircraft support three combatant commands. For the past two years, Colonel Rupp and his maintainers have elevated our C-130 readiness to the highest levels we've ever seen at Ramstein. And this past year their annual C-130 Mission Capable rate was the highest of all 37 C-130 maintenance squadrons in the Mobility Air Forces (No. 1 of 37).

Colonel Rupp and his team were also working behind the scenes at continuous process improvement using AFSO21 tools. Many have already heard about their Aerospace Ground Equipment, or AGE improvements, that were lauded last year by AF Chief of Staff Gen. Norton Schwartz. That's just the beginning. His Airmen reduced tool inventories by 7,300 items, trimmed benchstock by 98 percent, and through these initiatives saved Ramstein $25,000 annually. They embraced CPI so much that the 86th MXG reduced its entire real estate footprint on Ramstein. That's right, they gave back to the base not one, but two facilities valued at a total of $4.6 million. No wonder his MXG team was named the wing's foremost champion for AFSO21.

Colonel Rupp and his maintenance professionals were also working hard on the flightline, flawlessly converting from 16 older C-130Es to 14 new C-130Js. Their mission focus kept us ahead of the programmed timeline for people, C-130J specific equipment and maintenance training.

How flawless you ask? Well, three weeks ago, Colonel Rupp's maintainers performed the first active duty isochronal inspection of a C-130J in our Air Force. After less than two weeks of work, they returned the C-130J model back to the flightline early and ready to fly. And I didn't hesitate when the next week, I flew it on its first sortie post ISO. Now that's confidence in your Airmen, that's confidence in your leadership and that's a true testament to the maintenance professionals we have in our 86th MXG.

But don't take it from me, HHQ inspections told us that Colonel Rupp's 86th MXG earned an "Excellent" in last year's unit compliance inspection and an "Excellent" in this year's LCAP Inspection.

Colonel Rupp and Andrea: Sara and I, the men and women of the 86th MXG and Team Ramstein all thank you for and congratulate you on a job very well done. We wish you both God ppeed as you strap on the deputy A4 billet at HQ AMC, Scott Air Force Base.

Shoplifting: It's not worth the risk

by Senior Airman Scott Saldukas
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Shoplifting is something everyone knows they shouldn't do, but some still take the risk.

Though shoplifting has been going on for some time, there has been a recent spike in the criminal offenses here since the opening of the Kaiserslautern Military Community Center.

"The spike in shoplifting at the KMCC is mainly in the base exchange," said Lt. Col. Gary Trautmann, 86th Mission Support Group deputy commander. "It's mainly high school and middle school kids."

Kenneth Randall, loss prevention manager for the KMCC, said the problem is due to peer pressure in the school with kids trying to see what they can get away with. Just like shoplifting off base, the act is considered to be a crime and has serious repercussions.

"All privileges on base will be revoked," Colonel Trautmann said. "The person will not be allowed to purchase (items) from any establishments on base."

All minor dependents accused will not be allowed

Police Brigade, officials from the city of Mannheim, former 28th Trans. Bn. commanders Col. Stephen Farmen and retired Col. James Veditz, former 28th Trans. Bn. command sergeant major, retired Command Sgt. Maj. Arthur F. Peete, along with Soldiers, family members and friends of the battalion.

Colonel Evans expressed his pride in being a part of the En Temps history and noted that the inactivation of a unit as exceptional as the 28th Trans. Bn. touched not only the battalion, its Soldiers and the community, but also the transportation corps and the Army as a whole. Yielding his speech to former battalion commander Col. Stephen Farmen, the praise for the battalion and its Soldiers continued.

"From pre-World War II to present day, the En Temps battalion has served with a high level of honor, courage, character and distinction in every major campaign and war," Colonel Farmen said. "You can see that clearly in the Soldiers on parade here today."

The battalion has earned multiple campaign streamers and served with distinction throughout Europe.

In one of its most notable missions in Germany, the battalion supported one of the biggest operations of the Cold War and one of the largest humanitarian missions the world has ever seen — the Berlin Airlift, or "Operation Vittles" as it was commonly called. In an operation that saw U.S. forces deliver more than 1.7 million tons of food and coal to Berlin, the 28th Trans. Bn. was a vital part of that success, working with local nationals to unload and distribute vital supplies to Berlin citizens.

The partnership between the battalion and its host nation is a tradition that has flourished during the battalion's tenure in Germany. Mannheim has been the home of the battalion since 1964, and the bonds it has with the community were evident at the ceremony.

Col. Thomas Evans, 18th Military Police Brigade commander, and Maj. Nicole Heumphreus, 28th Transportation Battalion commander, review the troops in "Griffin 6" during the 28th Trans. Bn. inactivation ceremony June 4 on Coleman Barracks in Mannheim, Germany.

City Counselor of Mannheim Erwin Feike spoke for the citizens and lord mayor of Mannheim and offered a thank you on their behalf for the decades of friendship the U.S. forces have extended to the city and its citizens.

Mr. Feike expressed his appreciation for all the support the battalion has rendered and noted specifically "to the Soldiers and your families, we wish you, personally, the best of luck and all the best for your future endeavors, but most of all, good health and God speed."

Maj. Nicole Heumphreus, 28th Trans. Bn. commander, cased the colors of the battalion with 1st Sgt. Jade James, 28th Trans, Bn. acting command sergeant major, while the guidon of the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment was simultaneously furled.

For Major Heumphreus, the inactivation was something she said she always knew was coming, but that she had been in denial about for the past year. Having the day finally arrive was seeing her fear realized, she said.

"To be the 28th's final commander is an honor and privilege — one that I cannot fully put into words," she said.

Major Heumphreus believes that soon, we will once again see the trucks of the 28th Trans. Bn. on the road, she said.

"The 28th will not be forgotten. We have, and always will, play a vital role in our nation. All of us who have been a part of the En Temps family will continue to breathe new life into its legacy, as its colors wait for its nation to call upon it one more time to serve," she said.

For now, the mission of the 28th Trans. Bn. will be continued by the 391st Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, 16th Sustainment Brigade, with the continued dedication of former En Temps transportation companies that were reassigned within the 391st CSSB.

C-130J propels to Berlin Air Show

by Staff Sgt. Julius Delos Reyes
31st Fighter Wing Public Affairs

BERLIN, Germany — Hundreds of people who visited the ILA 2010 Berlin International Aerospace Exhibition and Conferences June 8 to 13 flocked to the Air Force's C-130J Hercules to see the unique capabilities of the aircraft.

"The whole team is excited to visit Berlin, see new aircraft and meet new friends," said Capt. John Lax, 37th Airlift Squadroon aircraft commander. "It's also great for us to feature the C-130J and its capabilities."

"The whole team is excited to visit Berlin, see new aircraft and meet new friends. It's also great for us to feature the C-130J and its capabilities."

The C-130 operates throughout the U.S. Air Force, serving with Air Mobility Command, Air Force Special Operations Command, Air Combat Command, U.S. Air Forces in Europe, Pacific Air Forces, the Air National Guard and the Air Force Reserve Command, fulfilling a wide range of operational missions in both peace and war situations.

"We are showing the German public our new avionics system and our heads up display," Captain Lax said. "The loadmaster and crew chief are featuring the electronic cargo handling system."

Captain Lax said the Berlin Air Show visitors were amazed with the aircraft and its capabilities.

"Most of them say, 'wow,' or 'cool,'" he said. "They say it smells like a new car."

Staff Sgt. Brandon Clark, 86th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron crew chief, said it was an honor for him to be at the air show showing the C-130J.

"It's a unique experience," he said. "It is something that not a lot of people have the opportunity to do."

But even with a four-man crew, the team still managed to provide good entertainment for the German public, Captain Lax said.

"The team is great," he said. "We get along very well and it's easy to do this because we know each other pretty well. The crew members are professional, hard working and excellent. They ensure things get done to showcase the C-130J."

Gen. Callan visits Battle Creek, discusses relationships

Tech. Sgt. Alec Lloyd
110th Air Operations Group
Public Affairs

Increasing integration and reinforcing the relationship between the 110th Air Operations Group and 17th Air Force were the themes of Brig. Gen. Michael Callan's first visit to Battle Creek Air National Guard Base June 4 and 5. General Callan is the vice-commander of 17th AF, also known as U.S. Air Forces Africa, based at Ramstein.

On Friday, General Callan toured the base, visiting each squadron area, and noted the progress of the AOG's renovations. He examined blueprints for the new AOG campus and also met with Adjutant General for Michigan Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Cutler, 110th Airlift Wing Commander Col. Rodger Seidel, AOG Commander Col. David San Clemente and AOG leadership, including one-on-one discussions with each of the squadron commanders.

Saturday's schedule included a briefing with AOG members, discussing the current state of 17th AF, taking questions and explaining how the AOG was integrated into 17th AF's command structure. He then held an officer's call before attending the wing formation.

"I thank Colonel San Clemente and the entire AOG for rolling out the red carpet," General Callan said. "We look forward to breaking new ground on how the National Guard and a component Numbered Air Force can provide U.S. Africa Command with full capability."

Though not the first organization of its kind, General Callan noted that the 110th AOG has rapidly established itself as a model for others. He praised the close cooperation of the two units and laid out a road map for even greater integration.

"The number of volunteers we have had for activations from the AOG is simply amazing," he said. "It really sets the AOG apart."

Both 17th AF and the 110th AOG are relatively new units. Seventeenth Air Force was reactivated in 2008 to serve as the Air Force command element for U.S. Africa Command, and the AOG stood up on April 1, 2009, to provide direct support to 17th AF.

General Callan was accompanied by 17th AF Command Chief Master Sgt. Michael Grimm, who held an NCO call on Saturday and discussed the concerns of the AOG's enlisted force.

"I think you have a great unit," said Chief Grimm, who joined 17th AF in January. "One of the most impressive things about our partnership is that when AOG members are deployed to Ramstein or in Africa, they are absolutely indistinguishable from the active-duty component. The integration is seamless."

Colonel San Clemente noted that though the AOG had enjoyed success, challenges remained.

"We are doing something new in our relationship with 17th Air Force, and from an administrative standpoint, that is not always easy," he said. "We could not have come as far and as fast without the phenomenal support we've gotten from 17th Air Force. We have some exciting days ahead of us in terms of training and real-world events. We tell people that may be interested in joining to bring a buddy with them, because we have a lot going on."

of things from perseverance and public service to leadership and integrity, drawing from his personal experiences as a student, educator and executive. He concluded his commencement speech by issuing a charge to the graduates before personally presenting each student with their diplomas.

"For all of you graduating tonight, the door of opportunity opens for you to serve and to lead," he said.

The student body and parents, as well as the faculty, were honored and energized by the defense secretary's visit.

"We are elated. This is probably one of the most memorable experiences these graduates will have to take with them," said Dr. Jennifer Beckwith, KHS principal. "He presented each one of them with their diploma and his coin. What an honor."

For those parents and friends of the graduates, it was a chance to watch their senior live an unforgettable moment.

"It's a great experience to see your son graduate from high school," said Master Sgt. Keith Houin, U.S. Air Forces in Europe Public Affairs operations superintendent. "It was a special honor to see the secretary of cefense present my son, Andrew Kirkbride, his diploma. My son was just as honored, and the addition of receiving one of Mr. Gates' coins was something few high school graduates can duplicate. Knowing it was the only high school he would give a commencement speech to this year, and only his second high school commencement speech made, it was that much more memorable."

His participation in the ceremony came at the conclusion of a five-nation tour in which he met with NATO defense ministers, according to a Department of Defense news release. While in Germany, Secretary Gates also visited wounded warriors at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center before continuing back to Washington, D.C.

BAMBERG, Germany — The Army Safety Excellence Streamer was awarded to the 317th Maintenance Company, 391st Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, 16th Sustainment Brigade on Warner Barracks here May 25.

The 317th Maintenance Co. is the first company in the brigade to earn the streamer since the brigade activated three years ago.

The streamer is awarded to units only if they had no Soldier or unit faults resulting in class A or class B accidents and have 100 percent completion of composite risk management within the last 24 months at the time of the submission.

A class A accident is any accident where the resulting total cost of property damage is $1 million or more; an Army aircraft or missile is destroyed, missing or abandoned; or an injury and/or occupational illness results in a fatality or permanent total disability

A class B accident is an accident where the resulting total cost of property damage is $200,000 or more, but less than $1 million, an injury and/or occupational illness results in permanent partial disability, or when three or more personnel are hospitalized as inpatients as the result of a single occurrence. Because of these requirements, the Army Safety Excellence Streamer is not a permanent award. The unit must re-qualify every year to keep it on the unit guidon.

Capt. Earl Elam, the 317th Maintenance Co. commander, said their safety record was attributed to integrating composite risk management into their in-processing so that Soldiers started out with safety on their minds.

The Soldiers worked hard to earn this, said 1st Lt. Homar M. Marval, the safety officer for the 317th Maintenance Co.

Lieutenant Marval said he saw what the Soldiers had accomplished and felt they deserved recognition for it.

"This isn't my award," Lieutenant Marval said. "The Soldiers deserve the credit, I just did the paperwork."

Safety is an ongoing theme, he said. You need to always emphasize it because it's important.

Injuries and equipment loss reduce the effectiveness of the military across the globe.

Practicing safety can help mitigate that risk and maintain an effective fighting force.

United Through Reading, USO connect families

ARLINGTON, Va. — The United Service Organizations marked its 100,000th recording of United Through Reading's Military Program on June 5. The program, which helps deployed servicemembers and their families stay connected by reading children's books on DVD, is available at more than 70 USO centers stateside and overseas through a unique partnership between the USO and United Through Reading.

"We are extremely proud to reach this significant milestone, connecting deployed servicemembers with their families despite the thousands of miles that separate them," said Sloan Gibson, USO president/CEO. "United Through Reading is a great example of our mission to support military families wherever they are located around the world."

USO Kaiserslautern offers two USO locations for United Through Reading: the Contingency Aeromedical Staging Facility and the Warrior Center. USO Kaiserslautern is excited to announce two more USO centers that just started offering United Through Reading in June: the Deployment Center on Rhine Ordnance Barracks and the Ramstein Terminal. The USO located at the Ramstein Terminal is an open United Through Reading facility for all military ID cardholders in the KMC.

USO Kaiserslautern employee Fawn Bennett said she is excited United Through Reading has reached its 100,000th reading.

"The United Through Reading program is truly an awesome idea. The feedback we have been given by the servicemembers has always been outstanding," she said. "When the child sees the bright yellow package, they know there is a book and a story waiting for them from a loved one."

United Through Reading offers military families a chance to see their loved one's face and listen to his or her voice. Once the troop is recorded reading a personally selected children's story, the book, DVD and instructions are mailed to the family. The parent at home is encouraged to photograph the child watching the DVD and following along with the book. This keepsake is sent back to the deployed servicemember, boosting morale, promoting a full circle of communication and offering a way to personally and visually communicate during deployments.

Since 2006, the number of United Through Reading's Military Program recordings at USO centers has steadily increased. In its first year, a little more than 4,200 recordings took place at USO locations. The total number grew to more than 20,000 in 2008 and 50,000 in the fall of 2009.

21st TSC medics compete for coveted expert field medical badge

Expert Field Medical Badge

by Sgt. Fay Conroy
21st TSC Public Affairs

BAUMHOLDER, Germany — Twenty-one medics from the 21st Theater Sustainment Command competed for the notoriously difficult Expert Field Medical Badge qualification badge June 7 to 12 at the Baumholder Training Area here.

One of the hardest badges to earn in the Army, the average pass rate for EFMB is 10 to 15 percent. As of Day Four, the 21st TSC had a pass rate above 40 percent, said Master Sgt. Michael Binosa, the senior medical non-commissioned officer from the 21st TSC Surgeon's Office.

Sergeant Binosa was also one of the board members who oversaw the set up and validation of this year's EFMB course at Baumholder.

The candidates, from across U.S. Army Europe, arrived at the testing site the week prior to undergo a week-long train up.

"It's been better than previous EFMBs in that we had a train up week, but it's been 10 times more exhausting because of the train up week," said Sgt. Stephen Hicks, a medic with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 16th Sustainment Brigade, 21st TSC, who is on his third attempt to earn the EFMB. "However, it helped out a lot because obviously we still have a lot of people left in the competition."

The Soldiers were required to earn GOs in all events. They had to receive GOs on three different combat testing lanes, which tested medical abilities and warrior tasks and drills. They also had to pass the day and night portion of land navigation, pass a written test and complete the timed 12-mile road march.

Although the candidates will be given two opportunities to pass the written test, if they receive a NO GO on any of the lanes or fail to pass the land navigation portion or the road march, they are immediately disqualified from earning the EFMB.

"It's not difficult tasks. It's tediousness that you have to do everything in a specific sequence, and if you miss one tiny step — one task could have 160 sub tasks — you miss the whole thing," said Spc. Dayna Taylor, a medic with the 529th Military Police Company, 95th Military Police Battalion, 18th Military Police Brigade, 21st TSC.

Despite the grueling ordeal, the right to wear the EFMB is something that all of the Soldiers felt was worth it.

"I already have good faith in my medical skills, but with the EFMB I can put faith in other people that I will be there when they need me the most," said Pvt. James Hogan, a medic with the 54th Engineer Battalion, 18th Engineer Brigade, who has only been in the Army for about a year and a half. "This just proves that I can be their medic."

For Sgt. 1st Class Shawn Hardiak, the medical operations non-commissioned officer for the 16th Sustainment Brigade and NCOIC at EFMB Testing Lane 3, it reminded him of how he felt when he earned his badge.

"When I received it, I was a private first class at the time. I think people looked at me differently and I felt different about myself," he said. "I think for these medics it's the same thing. I think that they have gone through a lot. It's tough. It's a lot of hard work and to actually get something — that's pretty prestigious. It says a lot about your character. It means a lot about who you are as a person, as a Soldier and as a medic."

Soldiers who met all the challenges of EFMB received their badges in a ceremony June 12 at Smith Barracks in Baumholder after completing the 12-mile ruck march. Six 21st TSC Soldiers met the challenge and earned the coveted badge.

"They are part of something bigger than themselves. They are associating themselves with excellence," Sergeant Binosa said. "I'm extremely proud of them for all of their hard work and dedication to come out here and their unit that supported them coming out here."

TLSC-E employees receive arms training

by Sgt. Frank Sanchez III
21st TSC Public Affairs

Maintenance personnel from various Army installations throughout Germany who are assigned to the 21st Theater Sustainment Command's Theater Logistics Support Center-Europe gathered at the Rod and Gun Club on Vogelweh from June 1 to today to learn more about the finer points on maintaining small arms weapons systems.

A training team from the Army's Tank-automotive and Armaments Command from Rock Island, Ill., traveled to Kaiserslautern to provide a three-week sustainment level maintenance course to the 11 personnel.

The TLSC-E employees are being certified to work on many various types of small Army weapons systems from the smaller M9 millimeter pistol and the large or M249 squad automatic weapon. The weapon systems are being broken down into their smallest components to be inspected, maintained and repaired if needed.

Marco Hoppe, the supervisor for the small arms maintenance shop in Kaiserslautern, works directly with Soldiers in the arms rooms to help repair broken weapons. He said he believes this course will help all the participants in small arms maintenance support within the 21st TSC.

"I am feeling very comfortable with this because we are tearing down the weapons to the 20 level where everything is torn apart and built back from the bottom. That is good stuff," Mr. Hoppe said.

Tech. Sgt. Scott Brown, non-commissioned officer in charge of combat arms on Ramstein, said this is the first time the Rod and Gun Club complex has been utilized in a partnership between the TLSC-E and the Air Force.

"It has been great. The folks over there came to us with what they needed, and we were able to provide for it. What we didn't have they were able to produce for us," Sergeant Brown said.

The class is important for the TLSC-E as their Maintenance Activity Center is assuming the responsibility for the backup small arms repair for the Kaiserslautern and Wiesbaden areas of responsibility.

Knights battle for WOY, WLOY supremacy

Story and photos by Spc. Kevin Alex
16th Sust. Bde. Public Affairs

Staff Sgt. Eric Trueblood (above), an explosives ordnance disposal technician with the 720th Explosives Ordnance Disposal Company, 391st Combat Sustainment Support Battalion in Mannheim, Germany, and Spc. Christopher Brown, an automated logistical specialist with the 240th Quartermaster Supply Company, 391st Combat Sustainment Support Battalion in Bamberg, Germany, start off on the land navigation portion of the competition May 18 at the local training area in Bamberg.

BAMBERG, Germany — Soldiers from the 240th Quartermaster Supply Company, 391st Combat Sustainment Support Battalion here and the 720th Explosives Ordnance Disposal Company, 391st CSSB in Mannheim met May 17 to compete for the 16th Sustainment Brigade Warrior Leader and Warrior of the Year title.

The competition was held to see who would represent the 16th Sust. Bde. at the 21st Theater Sustainment Command WLOY and WOY competition.

Two junior enlisted Soldiers and three non-commissioned officers were tested over a two-day competition consisting of an Army physical fitness test, weapons qualification, a written examination, day land navigation course, clothing inventory, night land navigation course, nine mile foot march in full battle gear and a rucksack, and a formal evaluation board.

The competition started off with the APFT. Spc. Monterio Churchman, an automated logistical specialist with 240th QM Co., 391st CSSB, from Memphis, said he thought he knew how to do pushups before the competition but he quickly learned the correct way when he realized during the competition that they were not being counted.

Once finished with the PT test, the Soldiers went out to Reese Range to qualify with their assigned weapons as well as brigade supplied 9 millimeter pistols and M-249 squad automatic weapons.

Sgt Madhur Karki, the Nuclear, Biological and Chemical non-commissioned officer for the 240th QM Co., 391st CSSB, from New York, said he had never fired the 9 millimeter pistol before, but the other Soldiers gave him pointers that allowed him to qualify successfully with the weapons system.

When they got back from the range, they took a written exam, testing their Soldier skills.

While traveling to the land navigation course, the Transportation Motor Pool vehicles got stuck in the mud. Spc. Christopher Brown, an automated logistical specialist with 240th QM Co., 391st CSSB, from Little Rock, Ark., said his favorite part was when everyone jumped out of the vehicles and got dirty trying to push the TMPs free.

Once the vehicles were free, the Soldiers tackled the land navigation course. Their objective was to find five points located throughout the local training area in a set amount of time.

Then it was time for the clothing layout and inspection. Each Soldier laid their gear and clothing out in identical configurations. The inspectors checked to see if everything from the packing list was there, if it was clean and if it was serviceable.

The competition continued into the night with the night land navigation course, which ended at around 1 a.m.

After a rigorous first day, and with only about three hours of sleep, each Soldier had to start the second day with a nine-mile march carrying a 35-pound rucksack, individual body armor with bulletproof plates, Kevlar and a weapon.

The final event was a formal board made up of sergeants major from across the 16th Sust. Bde., with Command Sgt. Maj. Ismael Rodriguez, the command sergeant major of the 16th Sust. Bde., as president of the board.

The Soldiers made their way into the room, their every move, every answer, being critiqued by the board.

When every Soldier finished the board, the scores were tallied and the winners were announced.

Sgt. Richard Hunter, the communications NCO for the 240th QM, 391st CSSB, from Glasgow, Ky., and Specialist Churchman earned the titles of the 16th Sust. Bde. WLOY and 16th Sust. Bde. WOY, respectively.

"The competition was very tiring, but overall it let me know where I stand and what I need to work on before the going to the next level," Sergeant Hunter said.

Sergeant Hunter and Specialist Churchman went on to compete in the 21st Theater Sustainment Command Warrior Leader of the Year and Warrior of the Year June 13 to 16 in Mannheim, Germany.

KERSCHEKNABBER FEST THIS WEEKEND

Dansenberg sponsors its third village fest known as "Kerscheknabber Fest" Saturday and Sunday in and around the Sporthalle (gym) of the local sports association, TUS Dansenberg.

Several local associations will contribute to the event, that features music and dancing, eating and drinking, a balloon contest for children, and other activities.

The event will be under the auspices of Kaiserslautern's lord mayor, Dr. Klaus Weichel.

The word "Kerscheknabber" in the fest's name is based on the village's crest from 1761, which shows a bird snacking on a cherry tree.

"Kerscheknabber" means snacking cherries. Locals called this bird Kerscheknabber and they themselves got the nickname Kerscheknabber from the surrounding communities.

The Kerscheknabber Fest in Dansenberg features a balloon contest with attractive prizes.

Festivities will begin at 6 p.m. Saturday. Acting mayor Alfons Fröhlich will officially tap the first keg of beer at 7 p.m. to be followed by a performance of the dance group Rot-Weiss. Party and dance music will start at 8:30 p.m. with the band Soundtrack Project.

On Sunday, the Dansenberg Men's Singing Association will sponsor a so-called Frühschoppen (early morning beer) with a card-playing tournament at 10:15 a.m. Local clubs will start serving all kinds of culinary food specialties at 11:30 a.m.

Around 2 p.m., the local choir and the Hohenecken singing association will entertain the audience before the gymnastics children of the local sports club present their skills at 2:30 p.m. Magician Rudini will then lure the spectators' attention at 3 p.m.

The balloon contest will take place at 3:30 p.m. in the big parking lot in front of Sporthalle. Winners receive nice prizes.

The Rittersberg Big Band will present a repertoire of swing and jazz from 4 to 6 p.m.

Throughout the day, children can enjoy special attractions such as a jumping castle and tabletop soccer.

K-Town goes car-free for inline skaters this summer

by Petra Lessoing
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Four times during the summer, inline-skaters can enjoy car-free routes in Kaiserslautern.

The city will start its skate night season from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday. The meeting location and starting point will always be on the Alte Theaterplatz (parking lot next to former Karstadt department store).

The Kaiserslautern skating association will co-organize the event.

The event will begin with an entertaining program at 7 p.m. on the Alte Theaterplatz. Those who don't feel safe enough on their skates can take part in a training session with the local skating association at 7 p.m. Certified instructors will be available to show skaters some special techniques.

Warm up will start at 8 p.m. The 1,100-meter-long warm up route goes from the parking lot around Fruchthalle and back.

Joachim Färber, the head of the sports department, will give the starting signal at 8:30 p.m. Participants will then start skating on a 14-kilometer route leading from Maxstrasse onto Pariser Strasse, then from Rudolph-Breitscheid-Strasse into Königstrasse.

The route continues over Hohenecker Strasse and Burgherrenstrasse into the Erfenbachtal on federal street B270 and downhill back to Pariser Strasse and Königstrasse to the beginning. This will also be the route for the skate night scheduled for July 20. It is considered a route for trained skaters who know their braking techniques.

The other two skate nights will be conducted July 6 and Aug. 3 and will lead participants over the East City Tour. The East City Tour starts on Maxstrasse, continues on Pariser Strasse, Rudolph Breitscheid-Strasse, Logenstrasse and Barbarossastrasse and then into the east part of the city. Then it continues on Entersweiler Strasse, passes the public swimming pool Warmfreibad and Daennerplatz, onto Mannheimer Strasse, and on Altenwoogstrasse and Fischerstrasse back to the starting point. This course is 9 kilometers long and is good for beginners. Organizers recommend all skaters wear helmets.

to enter any of the facilities on base without the direct supervision of a parent or sponsor. If it's a spouse, they will not be allowed to enter any of the establishments even when the sponsor is present.

"If the spouse of the military member gets caught their husband or wife will have to do all their shopping for them, and they won't be able to purchase anything on base if (the sponsor) deploys," the deputy commander said.

Also, individuals accompanying someone who is caught will also be charged and will lose their privileges.

The same day the person is accused of the crime, they will be instructed to get a restricted ID card for the on-base facilities, which will prevent them from purchasing anything.

There are many measures taken to prevent crime: more than 100 hi-tech cameras, electronic audible systems, school lectures and undercover employees imbedded with the customers.

"We have employees that mingle with the customers who watch the stores activity along with our other security measures," Mr. Randall said.

Once caught, it's too late to realize the significance of the offence.

"We are looking for deterrence and to educate everyone that the cameras there are hi-tech and the people there are good at their jobs, so you won't get away with it," Colonel Trautmann said.

Though shoplifting is not taken lightly, there is a general consensus on how not to get in trouble.

"Don't do it," the loss prevention manager said. "It's not worth getting caught and having a blemish on your record. You may have gotten away with it once or twice, but eventually you will get caught."

Visitors learn about herbs and herbal products Sunday during the herbal market at Lichtenberg Castle near Kusel.

Old walls hold herbal secrets

by Petra Lessoing
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Visitors of Lichtenberg Castle near Kusel will learn everything about herbs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Under the motto "Herbal secrets on Lichtenberg Castle," guided tours of the medieval herbal garden, herbal hikes, lectures and presentations will be offered.

Cooks of the Culinary County Road will show off their cooking skills and create fine menus using herbs to secure a perfect nutrition and good health.

Together with the Kusel Butchers' Guild they will offer delicacies including bratwurst and musician's land steaks. Cakes and coffee will be served as well.

Members of the service center of the local Westpfalz area will talk about "five a day — vegetables and fruit in everyday life."

The nature conservation association, NABU, will exhibit displays of 2010's bird of the year, the cormorant, and the medicinal plant of the year, ivy.

Vendors of the herbal market will offer all kinds of herbal products such as vegetable oil, vinegar, schnaps, liquor, marmalade, mustard, soaps and medicinal herbs. Goat cheese, brooms and pottery items will also be available for sale.

Stands are set up where visitors can learn how to use the common garden herbs, how they grow and how they are used for food, drinking specialties, in houses and for wellness and health.

There will also be cooking shows and demonstrations on how to plant herbs in backyards and keep away any pests. Guided tours through the medieval herbs garden will start at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m.

The Modern Swing Quarter and the band Die 3 aus Kusel will entertain the audience from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tickets to the herbal market cost €1.50 for adults; children under 12 are free.

While exploring herbal secrets at the market, organizers suggest also visiting the two museums located in the castle area: the Musicians County Museum and Geoskop, the primeval world museum. Admission fee is 50 cents for adults; children are admitted free.

Ramstein wins both AF original song categories

The secretary of the Air Force and chief of staff of the Air Force named July 2009 to July 2010 the Year of the Air Force Family. During this time, Myairforcelife.com held a contest where participants had to create an original song based on what living in the Air Force means to them and their family and friends.

Robert Samuels, spouse of Master Sgt. Olivia Samuels, 3rd Air Force, submitted the first entry and won the adult category for his song "Keep It In Step." Mr. Samuels wanted to create a song about where Airmen live and work and what they experience in life.

Mr. Samuels was in the top three for his category and received 342 votes. He was chosen as the winner by award winning songwriter Thom Shepherd.

"'Keep It In Step' — killer production. Great recruiting song, (and would) be great for a commercial or recruiting video," Mr. Shepherd said. "I love the last recitation verse. This song makes me want to join the Air Force."

Caylea Ingram, 14, daughter of Capt. Joey Ingram, 24th Intelligence Squadron, won the youth category for her song "This Life." Caylea received 843 votes, which was the most number of votes in her category.

"When I create music, it's really neat because I hear the music immediately," said Caylea, who has been writing songs since she was 7.

Mr. Samuels and Caylea were both awarded with a $2,000 Music Friend gift certificate. In addition to the gift certificate, Mr. Samuels will also receive a one-hour mentoring session with Mr. Shepherd via Skype.

Mr. Samuels said he plans on using his prize to buy studio equipment.

"I want to be able to record more songs and my plan is to open my own studio, so I can record with churches," he said.

Caylea plans on getting a new keyboard, microphone and sound board, which will help her create the tracks that she can't create using her current system.

Robert Samuels and Caylea Ingram, 14, are awarded a $2,000 Music Friend gift certificate for winning the Myairforcelife.com original song contest.

Both winners put in a lot of hard work and time into creating their songs and were very excited when they found out they had won.

"My family loved the song and were very supportive," Mr. Samuels said.

Myairforcelife.com is designed to help military members stay connected, informed and engaged through the many programs they offer.

Getting those wine collections stateside

by Robert Szostek
USEUCOM Customs Public Affairs

Heidelberg, Germany — Many Americans start a wine collection while stationed in Europe. With some advance planning, wine connoisseurs can still enjoy their favorite European vintages when they move to their new stateside homes.

"First contact your transportation office for shipping procedures and how, if possible, to get reimbursed for the transportation costs," said Bill Johnson, director of the U.S. European Command's Customs and Border Clearance Agency. He added that you will have to pay any customs duty or tax.

Military transportation officials will usually not pack a wine collection in personal property shipments for fear of damage if bottles break, but they will have a list of wine merchants and moving companies that ship wine.

"The company will tell you about state restrictions on alcohol and how to pay any tax that needs paying," he said.

Mr. Johnson said you must ship the collection to an airport with a U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) office.

After the company packs the collection, they will provide a shipping document and a copy of the bill of sale for the tax and shipping costs. Find out the shipment's airline, flight number, date of arrival and, most important of all, its shipping document number before flying.

"When you arrive stateside, go to the airport's cargo section with the shipping documents," Mr. Johnson said. "They will give you additional paperwork to take to the CBP office."

He recommends people personally clear their wine collection at the port of entry because using a customs house broker is expensive.

Nutrition: Knowing where and how to start

by 1st Lt. Phil "PJ" Menagh
Ramstein Health and Wellness Center nutrition program manager

Courtesy photo

If you have ever owned a truck, you have likely had dozens of friends ask you to tow their junk around town. And similarly, a physical therapist is constantly getting questions about aches and pains — in and out of the clinic.

When people find out that I am a dietitian, they often ask, "OK then, how should I eat?" My response is always, "Well, what do you want to accomplish by eating?"

Before asking "how," let's make sure we have a "where" and a "why." Where do you want to go with your health, nutrition or fitness goals? But more importantly, why do you want to get there?

Motivations and desires can be very unique from one person to another. Some may wish to lose 15 pounds to look and feel better.

Others are interested in gaining muscular strength to become more resilient. You may be training for an upcoming sports competition, or maybe your long term goal is to maintain or improve your current health for the next 30, 50 or 70 years.

Each of these goals will have a few subtle lifestyle adjustments. Ultimately, when you have a solid vision of where you want to go and why you want to get there, the "how" tends to fall in to place.

Before you adopt a new health practice, think about how it may contribute or detract from your progress. Will a rapid weight loss diet affect your competitive sports performance? Will drinking a sugary sports drink during your workouts sabotage your waist line? How will choosing pop tarts over fruit every morning influence your long term health? When you have well-defined objectives in mind, decisions along the way seem less perplexing.

Regardless of your goal, the best place to start a meal is covering half of your plate with non-starchy vegetables or fruits, choose a sensible protein source the size of the palm of your hand and place it on one-fourth of your plate, limit starches to the last one-fourth of the plate and choose whole sources with fiber. Finally, sprinkle in some healthy fats such as olive oil or avocados.

Eat only when you are hungry, take your time when eating meals and stick to vegetables if you go back for seconds. Limit treats to special occasions — one to two per week or less. Also, make time to exercise 30 to 90 minutes most days, and adjust your schedule to allow for some rest, relaxation and sound sleep.

Diligently follow these rules 90 percent of the time and you will be well on your way to obtaining and maintaining a healthy body composition.

Furthermore, improvements can be seen in chronic health factors such as blood pressure, cholesterol and blood sugar control. Your performance will improve in school, work or competition, and most importantly, you will be stacking the cards in your favor for living a longer, healthier life.

Are there other approaches that may also work for you? Absolutely. Then again, if you were completely content with your fitness and health, you would have stopped reading long ago. Try it. Do the work and eat good food. Write your goals down and put them in clear sight. Keep them in mind while you follow this advice for 6 weeks and see what happens. Then, adjust and adapt from there.

So, when should you start? How about now?

Go clean out your cupboards and discard foods with added sugars. Also, begin looking more closely at ingredient labels. The longer the list (and the more words you can't pronounce), the further it should be from your daily menu. Shop the perimeter of the grocery store. Stock up on fresh fruits and vegetables, lean meats, and eggs. Grab a bottle of olive oil and some lemon juice (toss together with Ms Dash for a great salad dressing). Go down the freezer aisle and pick up some steamer bags of veggies, berries and maybe some salmon. While you are at it, grab a few cans of tuna, some jerky, unsweetened dried fruits and a bag of almonds. Then, leave the store. Skip the candy, soda, chips and cookie aisles, and use the time you saved to get to the gym, go outside and play, or prepare foods for the work week ahead.

Uncomfortable in the kitchen? Use YouTube responsibly and search for "healthy cooking" or "cooking vegetables" for some great ideas.

Ramstein Renegade softball

The Ramstein Rams Varsity Softball Club, in conjunction with AFSA chapter 1674, is hosting its annual "Ramstein Renegade" tournament June 25 to 27 on Ramstein's southside and Kapaun softball fields. Tournament play kicks off at 4 p.m. June 25 on Ramstein with a Chiefs vs Eagles game followed by an icebreaker, with official games beginning at 6 p.m.. The tournament championship will take place at 6 p.m. June 27. Come out and cheer on your KMC leaders and check out some of Europe's finest softball players.

Bike race weekend

Army Outdoor Recreation is hosting weekend bike races: The Mountain Bike Race at Schopp Mountain Bike Park takes place July 10 and the Road Race at Rhine Ordnance Barracks takes place July 11. Register in advance by e-mailing Stephen.selvey@eur.army.mil or in person between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. the day of the race. For more information, call 493-4117 or 0631-3406-4117.

AF marathon

The 14th Air Force Marathon will take place Sept. 18 at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. Last year, more than 10,000 runners participated. Applications are due today. Those selected will be provided registration fee, lodging, airline travel and local transportation at the event (no per diem). Participants are authorized permissive TDY. The marathon will feature aircraft flyovers and a one-of-a-kind finish line surrounded by historic aircraft on the grounds of the National Museum of the USAF. All runners are presented medals at the finish line by uniformed general officers and colonels. For more information, contact Tom Burkett, HQ USAFE, at 478-2301 or tom.burkett@ramstein.af.mil. For details, visit ww.usafmarathon.com.

World Cup matches

All U.S. World Cup matches will be shown on big screen TVs at Armstrong's Club, Bldg. 1036 on Vogelweh. For a complete list of schedules, call Armstrong's Club at 489-6000 or 0631-354-9986.

The Last Song (PG) — An estranged father living in a small Southern beach town gets a chance to spend the summer with his reluctant teenaged daughter, who would rather be home in New York. He tries to connect with her through the only thing they have in common — music.

Starring Miley Cyrus and Greg Kinnear.

The Karate Kid (PG) — Twelve-year-old Dre Parker could've been the most popular kid in Detroit, but his mother's latest career move has landed him in China. Dre immediately falls for his classmate Mei Ying, but cultural differences make such a friendship impossible. Even worse, Dre's feelings make an enemy of the class bully, Cheng.

With no friends in a strange land, Dre has nowhere to turn but to maintenance man Mr. Han, who is secretly a master of kung fu.

As Han teaches Dre that kung fu is not about punches and parries, but maturity and calm, Dre realizes that facing down the bullies will be the fight of his life.

Starring Jaden Smith and Jackie Chan.

Walk to Make a Difference...
This is an organized effort to raise funds for "Heart for Humanity". Donation will be provided to the Kaiserslautern American Red Cross to assist those in need.
We need individuals or groups to walk/run to raise money! Entry fee is a minimum of $5.00, no more than $10.00. Individuals are encouraged to bring friends or Family and participate in an event where they can walk and enjoy fun-filled activities. If you cannot walk or run, you can still make a contribution.
"the world is full of miracles for the HEART that sees!"

KA advertisers living on base/ post and offering child care services are on the approved list of Family Child Care (FCC) providers. Those living off base/post offering these services in the KA are not screened by FCC. Use good judgement when choosing off base/post child care services. Qualifications should be checked and references requested before placing any child in the custody of child care providers who have not been screened.*Anyone providing more than 10 hours of care per week, on a regular basis, MUST be licensed by the FCC office. If you do not have a license and provide care, you could possibly lose your base housing privileges.**

TELECOMMUNICATION INNOVATION AT TKS

This spring, TKS launched a new generation of web and telephone services that are based on Voice over IP connectivity. The key advantage with VoIP is that service providers like TKS can really fine-tune and customize their product offerings specifically for the special needs of the military audience. Surf'n'Talk offers users a fantastic set of features and benefits such as no minimum contract duration, flat-rate Internet, free calls to the USA, automatic cost control, along with extremely flexible terms. With its powerful combination of standard features and options, Surf'n'Talk may be the ideal solution if you're looking to get connected in Germany – let's take a closer look!

The connection

Surf'n'Talk utilizes advanced network technology to deliver both web and phone service to your home over a dedicated data connection. Even though there's some nifty tech going on in the background, your phone service behaves just like any phone connection you've ever had before: you can dial any number and anyone in the world with your number can call you. Use a standard off-the-shelf telephone to make and receive calls, your computer doesn't have to be turned on or connected.

Flexible terms

With Surf'n'Talk from TKS, there's no minimum contract duration. This is important because it means there's no worry about early cancellation fees or having to buy-out a long-term service agreement. With the unpredictability of the military lifestyle this one feature alone could save you a lot of money.
How much? It depends. If you were to pay around € 40 a month for example and then had to cancel with a mere 10 months left on the contract, that would make for a tidy € 400.00 final bill.
Most German service plans come with a 24-month contract, and they also have a nasty habit of automatically renewing. So if your plans change in midstream, or you forget to cancel according to "their schedule", you might be faced with having to pay for a year or more of service, whatever's leftover. With the TKS bundle Surf'n'Talk, there's never any hidden costs or terms and you can keep the service as long as you need it.

Free calls to the USA 24/7

With an around the clock USA flat rate, you can stay in touch and talk all you want with friends and family back home.

Plug-and-play setup

You don't need to be a computer wiz to get connected because TKS modems are already setup to automatically synch and connect. Just plug in your phone and computer, everything is color coded and the setup guide is easy to follow.

Number portability

When you move, take your telephone number with you. There's no need to update your contact info at work or with friends, you can use your Surf'n'Talk number anywhere in Germany.

TDY service hold

With the TDYRelaxed option you can put your phone service "on hold" while you're away, save costs and then have it automatically restart when you're back.

Flat rate Internet

Surf as long as you want over a powerful 6000Kbps web connection.

Get it in English

There's no need for translations at TKS with customer service, bills, product information and maunals, as well as tech support all in English.

To find out more about Surf'n'Talk, visit a TKSShop near you for a personalized consultation.
You'll find a TKSShop inside the Ramstein KMC Center, at LRMC, Vogelweh and Sembach.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
RELEASE No. 201000617-01 June 17, 2010

AAFES Announces Fuel Prices for June 19, 2010 to June 25, 2010

MAINZ-KASTEL, Germany –The Army & Air Force Exchange Service is adjusting gasoline prices effective Saturday, June 19, 2010 based on the current weekly U.S. Department of Energy average price plus incremental costs associated with providing gasoline overseas.

For the week ending June 14, 2010, the DoE average price for unleaded grades of fuel and diesel decreased in Germany, and the U.K. Prices increased in the Netherlands. Prices remained unchanged in the Azores and Turkey. As a result gas prices for AAFES Europe will be as follows:

WEEKLY FUEL PRICES

Country	Regular Gallon	Regular Liter	Mid Grade Gallon	Mid Grade Liter	Premium Gallon	Premium Liter	Diesel Gallon	Diesel Liter
Germany	2.923	0.772	3.047	0.805	3.169	0.837	3.150	0.832
Change	(0.024)	*	(0.024)	*	(0.025)	*	(0.018)	*
Netherlands	*	*	3.527	0.932	3.774	0.997	3.586	0.947
Change	*	*	0.075		0.081	*	0.113	*
U.K.	*	*	2.972	0.785	3.094	0.817	3.075	0.812
Change	*	*	(0.024)	*	(0.025)	*	(0.018)	*
Turkey	*	*	*	*	3.459	0.914	3.549	0.937
Change	*	*	*	*	0.000	*	0.000	*
Azores	*	*	*	*	3.491	0.922	*	*
Change	*	*	*	*	0.000	*	*	*
6/14/2010
DoE Ave	2.701		2.825		2.947		2.928

In Turkey, the Azores and the Netherlands all grades of fuel are set at floor price. "Floor" prices occur when the cost of fuel plus dispensing costs is greater than the DoE average plus incremental dispensing costs.

Incremental dispensing costs are costs which AAFES incurs to pump fuel overseas. These incremental dispensing costs include personnel costs, the cost to run the fuel card program and any additional expenses; e.g., changes in the exchange rate, wage costs for local nationals (a key component for our overseas dispensing costs formula), etc.
